NEW DELAY IN RAILROAD CRISIS

RUSSIANS IN BALKAN DRIVE

Large Force of Czar's Troops Landed at Salonica to Aid the Allies in Their New Offensive

Athens, July 31, via London, Aug. 22.—An initial brigade of Russian troops has arrived at Salonica to join the entente allies in the fighting in the Balkans.

After a conference of the French, British, Serbian and Russian commanders at Salonica, it was decided that the newly arrived Russian forces should take up positions with the Serbian troops on the southern frontier of Serbia.

The Serbo-Russian force was placed under a combined staff of which Crown Prince Alexander of Serbia is the nominal commander. The Russian Gen. Friederiecss is in actual command.

The arrival of the Russians has created a profound impression here. Even the Royalists, who have consistently opposed participation in the war by Greece on the side of the entente allies, seemed almost stunned by the news that Russian troops had arrived to take the part in the campaign which under other conditions might have been taken by the Greek army.

The general feeling here is that the bringing in of Russian troops has dispelled definitely the dream of a greater Greece which was conceived a year and a half ago by the then Premier Venizelos, who carried Greece well on the way toward entrance in the war with the entente allies.

It is regarded as possible that the presence of Russian forces in Macedonia will effect a change in the attitude of Bulgaria.

Bulgars Lose Ground on Centre.

Salonica, Aug. 22.—While the Bulgarians have continued to gain steadily in their drive on Kavala, they have lost ground on their centre, where the allied forces are pressing northward along the Struma and Vardar valleys.

On their right wing the Teuton allies are exerting strong pressure against the entente forces in the district around Florina. In that section the Bulgarians have advanced southward along the railway leading toward Salonica from Monastir.

The reorganized Serbian army, under command of the Serbian crown prince, has been taking a leading part in the operations, and was successful in driving the Bulgarians from trenca elevations on the heights of Kaburnik, in the sector where the Anglo-French forces crossed the Demirhissar-Seres road in the fighting in the Kapaikli region.

West End Girl Dives Deep in Charles for Lost Keys; Gets Them

Photograph shows Deborah Astrin, who dove and recovered keys from Charles Basin. Artist's sketch shows how she got back her lost articles.

The best "toe diver" of the Charles River basin is Deborah Astrin, a West End girl, according to her friends. She is assistant agent for the Glun model tenements.

Early morning pedestrians were surprised to see, as they passed the float near the Union Boat Club, a young woman in an attractive bathing suit plunging again and again beneath the water and coming up with gravel and stones in her hands, only to throw them away and try again.

When success seemed impossible, and when many would have given up the search, in water several feet deep, Deborah poised a long boat hook firmly into the mud and sand and proceeded to climb down. There was silence among the group of spectators when her head disappeared.

But when she again peeped above water, there was a smile on her face, explained as she lifted a small foot above the waves and displayed a key ring hanging to one of her toes.

The keys had been lost when the young woman landed from her canoe at the wharf to get a drink from a fountain on the esplanade; as she leaned over, the keys from her belt slipped into the river. Her loss was a serious one, for there are many doors, safes and closets in a model tenement. Her first act when she saw that the keys were gone, was to take from her hat the "woman's weapon" ready on all occasions, her hat pin, and perched on the steps the exact place where the loss occurred.

The next morning, before many were astir, she started for her now famous West End diving stunt, which has added to her reputation for pluck, ingenuity, and expertness.

Deborah Astrin lives on McLean street, near the Massachusetts General Hospital.

20 KILLED IN MUNITIONS PLANT

London, Aug. 22.—Twenty bodies have been recovered from the ruins of the Yorkshire ammunition plant which blew up yesterday, it was announced in Commons this afternoon by Dr. Addison of the Ministry of Munitions.

DUNN RELEASED BY MEXICO OFFICIALS

Washington, Aug. 22.—Consul-General Rodgers in Mexico City today reported to the State Department that H. A. Dunn, an American employe of an electric light plant in Mexico City, had been released. Dunn had been held for several weeks on a charge of selling dynamite to Zapatistas.

PICK GROUP OF 8 TO CONFER

Railroad Executives Put Fresh Responsibility for Peace in the Labor Situation on New Board

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 22.—On the shoulders of eight of the biggest railroad executives in the country was placed today the responsibility for the consideration by the railroads of President Wilson's proposal to avert the threatened railway employes' strike. The big group of railroad presidents delegated to a committee the formulation of the statement of facts upon which they would meet the impending crisis.

The committee was given no authority to formulate a counter-proposal to President Wilson, or to definitely recommend acceptance or rejection of the President's demands.

Headed by Hale Holden, president of the C., B. & Q., the committee was named. It was announced, for "general consideration of the questions involved." The committee went to work at once.

BOARD OF EIGHT NAMED.

While the executives generally threshed over very mooted points, the eight men sought to weed out of the situation all irrelevant and unimportant details. They proposed to confine the discussion of the situation by the railroad presidents to the bare essentials and to this end they endeavored to eliminate all collateral questions. The committee will lay before the railroad executives a statement of the conditions which must be met.

In announcing the appointment of the committee, the railroad executives issued the following statement:

"Mr. Hale Holden, president of the Burlington, as spokeman for the railroad executives who are conferring with President Wilson on the railroad wage problem, announced this morning that a committee from the three score executives now in Washington has been named for the general consideration of the questions involved.

"The members of the committee are: Hale Holden, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad; W. W. Atterbury, Pennsylvania Railroad; Fairfax Harrison, Southern Railway; R. S. Lovett, Union Pacific Railroad; E. P. Ripley, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway; Alfred H. Smith, New York Central Railroad; Frank Trumbell, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway and Daniel Willard, Baltimore & Ohio."

EARLY PEACE HOPE WANES.

The committee is in continuous session considering the situation, but it is understood that no conclusions have yet been reached.

The responsibility for the further peace negotiations is today clearly up to the railroad executives.

The members of the committee conferred with various groups of executives and sought to acquaint themselves with the various differing conditions confronting the railroads in different parts of the country. They proposed to maintain continuous conferences with their colleagues until the work was completed.

Meantime, hope for an early settlement of the situation today waned.

As the temperature and humidity increased today Boston began to swelter. The weather forecaster said that the day would be even warmer than yesterday, when the temperature stopped at the 91 degree mark.

At 10 o'clock the temperature was 84 degrees, which was one point higher than at the same time yesterday.

Thousands left on the early boats for the beaches in order to escape the torrid rays in Boston. Nantasket Beach, Nahant, Revere and the other seashore resorts were havens of refuge for the sunbaked inhabitants of Boston and the surrounding cities.

THRONG AT L STREET.

City Point and L street were also patronized liberally by those persons anxious to escape the scorching rays of the sun and be cooled by the breeze from the ocean.

An army of men were on hand early at L street. They splashed in the cool, greenish water and laughed merrily as they submerged in the channel in an attempt to imitate the German undersea craft.

The wind today was light. It was from the west and southwest. The weather forecaster asserted there was but little chance of the wind shifting before tomorrow night.

HUMIDITY CAUSES SUFFERING.

The stifling humidity today caused much suffering. While the mercury registered as high as 91 yesterday, the mean humidity was only 58.

If the humidity continues to rise and the mercury soars around the ninety mark, there are sure to be many heat prostrations. The City Hospital and Relief station in Haymarket Square have prepared for such an emergency. They have extra doctors and orderlies on duty and are prepared to handle any emergency which may be caused by an excessive number of heat prostrations.

The first prostration reported today was that of Patrolman William A. Hanley of No. 58 Watts street, Chelsea. He was overcome by the heat in the guard room at the Chelsea police station.

PRESIDENT VETOES FOREST MEASURE

Washington, Aug. 22.—President Wilson this afternoon vetoed a bill which would authorize incorporated cities and towns to acquire portions of national forests for certain community uses. The bill was aimed to amend an act of 1898 which permits cities and towns to acquire unreserved public lands.

"National forest lands cannot be regarded as suitable for disposition for general purposes in the same way that unreserved public lands are," the President stated in his veto message.

Arrest Suspect for Woman's Death at Bar Harbor, Me.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 22.—Guy Small of Otter Creek was arrested today by Inspector Lawrence Colgan of the attorney-general's office, charged with the murder of Mrs. Emma Turnbull more than two weeks ago.

The murder mystery has excited the millionaire colony in the last few days, and natives and Summer residents alike have been loud in their censure of the authorities for not taking decisive steps before.

Small is a farm laborer about thirty-five years old. He is married and has four children. Small claims that between 2 and 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder he was in his own house. His wife says he was haying in the field of a neighbor at that time. These conflicting statements led to his arrest today.

Cow Comes Right Up Stairs to See Real Estate Agent

George H. Carrick, a Cambridge real estate dealer, was talking in his office on the second floor at No. 8 Boylston street, Cambridge, today, with N. Russell Casmaya and Constable John Foster when a co came in.

That's nothing extraordinary. A cowcame in the same office last year.

A herd of 50 bossies was being driven through Harvard square toward Brighton abattoirs. They became peevish and wandered.

Patrolman Joe Kelly tried to shoo one back into line so successfully that she bolted around the corner of Boylston street, through the doorway of No. 8 and straight up the stairs—it's a sad story, mates, but true—and into Carrick's real estate office.

The three men granted bossy by the horns, switched her end-for-end and had her going down the stairway before she could say "moo."

At the street level bossy bolted straight across into a Chinese laundry and sacred the sons of the Orient.

Driver Killed in Runaway in Front of His Own Home

John Robinson, fifty-five, and single, of No. 69 Spencer avenue, Chelsea, was instantly killed today when a two-horse team which he was driving ran away and plunged into a tree in front of Robinson's home. The team, drawing a wagon loaded with straw, Thomas Nash being on the wagon at the load, became frightened on Broadway and dashed into Spencer avenue, where the two men lived.

Narrowly missing a furniture wagon, driven by John Sobleskiy of Peabody, the horses hit a tree, throwing Robinson to the sidewalk on his head, and then swerved across the street where they were stopped in another tree.

Nash had to be awakened when the team came to a standstill.

TEN-DOLLAR FLOUR NOW HITS BOSTON

Ten-dollar flour is here.

The advance in price of wheat has boosted the wholesale price of flour. Best brands have gone up to $9.85 and $9.25 per barrel, by the carload lot.

The retail price usually scales about seventy-five cents on top of the wholesale, so those who call for the fancy brands face a charge of $9.50 to $10 a barrel. Pastry flours range wholesale from $8.75 to $8.

ONE DEATH AND 17 NEW CASES TODAY

The infantile paralysis quarantine at Onset is being broken by panic-stricken Summer residents, who are fleeing homeward by auto and train.

Seventeen new cases and one death in Lynn were reported in Massachusetts today by the State Department of Health.

This is the largest number reported for this State in a single day of the present epidemic.

It makes a total of 160 cases reported since August 1.

Wakefield—Sorcoreo Santoro, six; first case in this town.

North Adams has two new ones, making twenty-three in that city.

The Berkshire town of Montague has a new case, its fifth. Salem reports its fifth.

CERTIFICATES FOR CHILDREN.

The State Health Council, as a new emergency measure, has decided that local health authorities through the State shall issue certificates to children under sixteen who are leaving the State.

BOARDS LATE IN WORK.

So serious has the situation become in North Adams that a State and federal expert are working jointly in effort to check the epidemic.

New cases, including three deaths at Onset, which caused the terrified exodus of Summer residents, include the following:

North Adams—Walker Carlton of No. 7 Richmond avenue and Gerald Gray of No. 48S Vernon street.

Montague—Carol Clifford.

Salem—Frances Barnes of No. 17 Conant street.

Pittsfield—Eight-months' old baby, placed in Mercy Isolation Hospital.

Fairhaven—Elnora Card, No. 46 Bridge street.

TWO ATTACKS BY SUBMARINE ON WARSHIP.

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 23.—A German battleship of the Nassau class was torpedoed by the British submarine "E-23" on Saturday morning and is believed to have been sunk, the Admiralty announced today. The attack took place in the North Sea. The Admiralty statement follows:

"The submarine 'E 23' which put in today from a North Sea cruise reports that on Saturday morning she made a successful torpedo attack upon a German battleship of the Nassau class. The commanding officer, Lieutenant Commander Turner, reports that while the battleship was being escorted by five destroyers to her harbor in a damaged condition, he again attacked her with a second torpedo. Lieutenant-Commander Turner believes she sank.

"It is probably unnecessary to say that the statement already contradicted and repeated today in an official Berlin message that a British destroyer was sunk and a battleship damaged on Saturday is wholly without foundation."

The sister ships of the Nassau are the Posen and Rheinland. They displace 18,602 tons and carry crews of 961 men each. The Nassau was put in commission in 1910 at Wilhelmshaven.

Bulgar Army Takes Macedonian Towns.

By International News Service.

Sofia, via Berlin Wireless, Aug. 22.—Official announcement of the occupation of Demirhissar in Greek Macedonia was made today by the Bulgarian War Office.

The left wing of the Bulgarian forces has begun a general offensive.

On their right wing the Bulgarian column which captured Florina has pressed forward 15 miles, occupying Kozlena.

In the Vardar valley the statement says Anglo-French attacks lasting for ten days were repulsed.

The official communication, which is dated August 20, follows:

"On account of the activities of the entente forces in the Vardar Valley, extending east of Struma, and north of Lachinco Lake, our left wing began a general offensive on August 18.

"The Bulgarian troops advanced in Struma Valley. After an engagement near Seres we repulsed the Anglo-French forces on the right bank of the Struma and occupied the left bank between Bulkova and Lachinco Lake.

"Following out our plans, detachments are advancing between the Struma and Mesta. In the Vardar Valley the enemy have been attacking our positions for ten days without any success.

"Heavy losses were inflicted upon the entente troops south and west of Doiran by our artillery fire.

"Our right wing, after the victory over the Serbians near Florina, successfully carried out our plan of action. Yesterday we occupied the railway stations of Bonkina and Ekehkion on the Salonika railway and re-established our railway communicating with Monastir.

"South of Prespa Lake we have occupied the villages of Bresnitza and Zaradishtitza, thus interrupting connections between Koritza (Albania) and Florina, as well as between Koritza and Kastoria (Greece)."

British Encircling Thiepval on Somme

By SIDNEY H. CAVE.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Aug. 22.—British troops are gradually encircling Thiepval, the only German stronghold on the Somme front that has withstood the battering of the allies' offensive. The official communication issued by the War Office today announced progress for the British, both to the northwest and southeast of Thiepval.

In the sector of Pozieres the British advanced on a half mile front to the outskirts of Mouquet farm.

The British troops, the official statement said, are now within 1,000 yards of Thiepval, which has been under heavy artillery fire for more than six weeks.

Thiepval marks the northernmost point at which the British attacked early in July. Afterwards, however, the fighting spread northward past Thiepval to Hebuterne and Gommecourt. Thiepval is seven miles west of Bapaume. Mouquet farm is about a mile to the southeast of Thiepval.

The text of the War Office report follows:

"At Guillemont the enemy garrison is still maintaining obstinate resistance, in spite of very heavy losses from our bombardment.

"In the vicinity of Pozieres we again made considerable progress. We advanced on a half-mile front and established ourselves at the road junction just outside of Mouquet farm.

"Northeast of the Pozieres-Mirmont road we pressed forward. In the Leipzig salient (named after a German fortification called the Leipzig redoubt) we extended our gains. Our positions have now been advanced to a point within 1,000 yards of Thiepval. Over 100 more prisoners were taken by us."

BRITISH RENEWING GRIP ON IRELAND

London, Aug. 22.—A Dublin dispatch says there are signs in Ireland of a tightening of the reins of the military rule on the eve of the parliamentary recess. Newspapers have been warned that criticism of the government and of the administration likely to cause disaffection will not be tolerated.

New regulations give the power to the civil and military authorities to prevent the entry into Ireland of Irishmen and to deport those who have come into the country since March 1.

WAR SUMMARY

Rumania is once more reported about to enter the war on the side of the allies. One report, indeed, is that she has already thrown the weight of her 500,000 troops into the Balkan balance. London tells us that dispatches from Amsterdam and Berlin say German opinion virtually concedes "the defection of Rumania." If there is any defection by Rumania, it will be from the ranks of the neutrals. Rumania's feeling has been from the first strongly pro-ally. With the Russian operations taking their present course in Galicia, it would not be at all surprising to hear officially at any moment that Rumania has joined the allies.

In some quarters it is stated Rumania has as many as 600,000 men under arms. Her army is probably as well equipped as any in Europe. Its training has been going on for a long time. It would be able to attack the Bulgars from the rear, crowning the Salonica drive, in which General Sarrail's Franco-British army is already believed greatly to outnumber the Bulgars.

The Balkan drive under General Sarrail proceeds today with growing fury, fighting being under way over a 155-mile front. The Franco-British forces have crossed the Struma on the right of the line, pushing toward the Bulgarian frontier. The Serbians, formed into a rejuvenated army, have suffered one reverse, being forced to evacuate the Greek town of Banica, but they have stormed and captured the first line of Bulgar trenches in their advance on Monastir. With or without Rumania, there are busy times ahead for the opponents of the entente allies in the Balkans, where Field Marshal von Mackensen, transferred from the western front, is on credible authority reported today in supreme command of the Teutonic allies.

The British and French today report slight progress north and south of the Somme, but on the Russian front the situation appears unchanged.

GERMANS REPORT VIOLENT FIGHTING ON SOMME FRONT

By International News Service.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—Fighting of great violence developed on an extensive scale north of the Somme last night, the German War Office reported today. Bitter fighting is in progress for possession of the village of Guillemont.

Both British and French attacks broke down, but south of the Somme the French succeeded in capturing some trenches near Estrees which were later retaken by the Germans.

The text of the official report follows:

"West front—Fighting north of the Somme developed on an extensive scale. Repeated British attacks between Thiepval and Pozieres were repulsed, but a projecting angle was lost. Northeast of Pozieres and at Foureux Forest enemy storming columns broke down.

"Bitter fighting developed for the possession of Guillemont. The enemy temporarily penetrated our position there, but was driven out by a Wuerttemberg regiment, which now firmly holds the place. Counter attacks were repulsed by us.

"Partial attacks by the French between Maisons des Vues successful.

"South of the Somme the French attacked in the sector of Estrees and Soyecourt. We lost a sector of trenches, but recaptured them by counter-attacks. One officer and eighty men remained in our hands.

"East front—Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg—On the Stokhod the Russians continue to attack in the region of Rudka-Czerwiese. We repulsed assaults there, capturing two officers, 270 men and four machine guns. We successfully attacked enemy advanced posts at Smolary, capturing fifty prisoners and two machine guns."

WOMAN EXECUTED AS SPY IN FRANCE

Paris, Aug. 22.—The execution of a woman as a spy is reported today in a Havre despatch from Marseilles. According to this information, Felice Flint was put to death at the lighthouse shooting range, having been convicted of espionage by the council of war of the fifteenth region.

RUMANIA MAY JOIN ALLIES

London, Aug. 22.—Rumania is reported to have cast her lot with the entente. No formal declaration has yet been made, but the situation is regarded so seriously in Berlin that the central empires are said to be preparing an ultimatum.

Great importance is attributed to a conference between the Rumanian Minister of War and the Russian military attache at Bucharest.

The Kreuz Zeitung of Berlin is quoted in a Copenhagen dispatch as expressing the supposition that this conference was held to discuss a plan of campaign. Russia, it is said, will send armies to co-operate with Rumania in a march into Serbia, taking the Germans and Bulgarians in the rear.

"Germany must regard any such arrangement as a casus belli," the newspaper is quoted as saying.

Hints of the Austro-German ultimatum are being circulated by the semi-official Wolff's agency of Berlin, according to Geneva dispatches, which state that the situation is serious.

VERDUN HONORED BY CZAR FOR DEFENCE

Paris, Aug. 22.—The Russian government has conferred the Cross of St. George upon the city of Verdun, in recognition of its heroic defence. A dispatch from Petrograd says a special delegation leaves the Russian capital this week to present the decoration to the Mayor of Verdun, as representative of the city.

Petrograd Says Positions in East Are Unchanged

Petrograd, Aug. 22.—There is no change in the positions on the western front (not the Russian theatre of war) the war office announced today. In both Armenia and Persia the Russians are advancing, driving the Turks before them, the official communication says. West of Lake Van, a whole company of the Seventh Turkish regiment was captured.

The official report follows:

"Western front—The situation is unchanged.

"Caucasus front, fighting north of Diarbekr resulted favorably for us. We advanced west of Lake Van, capturing a company of the Seventh Turkish regiment. West of the Eastern Euphrates we captured ten officers, a doctor, 215 men, four machine guns and three field pieces.

"Persian front—We defeated Turkish cavalry at Ushnu. The enemy was driven back toward the west near Kalapasovo."

In view of the absence of official information on operations in Volhynia and Galicia, it is assumed that a temporary deadlock has existed. Unofficial dispatches, however, state that the Russians are still delivering powerful attacks along the Stokhod river and in the Carpathians.

Announcement of the entrance of Russian forces into Hungary through Rodna and Jakobinitza Passes is expected very soon.

GREEK AND BULGAR TROOPS IN BATTLE

London, Aug. 22.—Greek troops have been fighting the Bulgarians in the vicinity of Seres since Sunday morning, says an Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph.

The Greek commander at Seres has called to arms all the reservists in that locality, says the dispatch. That the fighting is of a stubborn character is indicated by the fact that a large number of Greek soldiers have been killed.

FRENCH REPORT GAINS BOTH SIDES OF SOMME

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Aug. 22.—Following the infantry lull on Monday the French again attacked last night south of the Somme, capturing elements of a German trench at Estrees, the War Office announced today in its official communique.

North of the river the French attacked at Cloy, on the Combles Peronne highway, making further progress.

There was excessive artillery activity all along the front, with the French shelling the German trenches and the Germans dropping curtains of fire in an effort to forestall a French infantry attack.

The latest infantry engagements by the French on the Somme show an absence of frontal pressure against Germans, their objective. The two assaults mentioned in today's communique were directed against the Germans defenders of Perone from the north and from the southwest.

The text of the official communique follows:

"North of the Somme the artillery activity continues on the greater part of the front. During the night we made progress on the outskirts of Clery and in the wood captured by us on August 20.

"South of Guillemont we captured a additional seventy-seven centimetre guns, which makes a total of eight taken by us in this engagement.

"South of the Somme local engagements permitted us to occupy several trench elements southwest of Estrees and to the east of Royecourt. We made some prisoners.

"Northwest of Soissons one of our detachments succeeded in a surprise attack against a German trench on the Vingre plateau.

"Aviation—Yesterday one of our pilots brought down an albatross machine near Langrevoisin. Southeast of Nesles four enemy biplanes attacked at close range our aviators but were forced to flee.

"During the night of August 21-22 one of our squadrons dropped seventy-nine shells on the stations and railway tracks at Tergnier and Fresnoy. The station at Pont Eveque and the station at Amplly. Our aviators report that violent outbursts of flame occurred. All of our aviators returned unharmed."

800,000,000 Sold Yearly

Filene's

8th August sale of NEW FURS

guarantees savings of 20% and more on the BEST furs of the entire season

THE 1917 fur styles are settled. All thoughts of savings aside, now is the time to buy, because now only can you be sure of getting the pick of the skins, now only can you be sure of the most careful, unhurried matching. Many women buy in the August Sale for these reasons alone.

Without a single exception, EVERY piece of fur in the Filene Sale is NEW. Nothing from last year, nothing made over goes in.

We can guarantee intelligent service as well as savings

We know that most people are obliged to buy furs on faith. Therefore, not only is every piece of fur in the sale stamped and ticketed for what it is, but our salespeople are fur experts and do not need to look at a ticket to sell furs for what they are. They can tell you what furs are most practical, and how well even the hot-house kinds wear with loving care.

Terms of sale

25% deposited now (or charged on August bills) subject to refund or credit at your desire up to November 1. All furs bought in this sale will be stored and insured free up to November.

You run no risk

If at any time for any reason, before November 1, you may decide you do not want the furs you bought in August, we will immediately refund or credit the deposit. The entire risk, if risk there be, is ours, although it is not likely we would have invested $60,000 in furs to sell in August if we felt that prices would be lower.

If furs could be woven on looms, you could not buy $100 worth in August for $80

—Furs, unlike fabrics, have one season of production—winter.
—The trappers reach the trading posts with them early in the spring—and get their pay.
—In turn the trading post sells to central fur markets where manufacturers come to buy.
—More money must then be spent to tan, dye and make.
—Meanwhile a lot of money is tied up for a long time.
—If the manufacturing furrier can turn his stock into money in August, to use over again for his winter's business, he is glad to save the early purchaser money for doing him the favor. And so are we—
—The furs in the August Sale and the furs that will be sold in December are the same. All last winter's catch, brought by the trappers to the trading posts before the snow melted. The 1917 styles are settled. The only difference between furs bought in August and those bought later on is that furs bought in August are the first choice of the new skins and the most carefully made.

We guarantee

1. That the styles are right.
2. Savings of at least 20% over prices before November 1.
3. That the furs in this sale are all new.
4. Dependable qualities and workmanship.
5. A satisfactory transaction or refund of deposit.

PARALYSIS EPIDEMIC FEARED

case at that time was called spinal meningitis.

As Phillips grew weaker, Dr. Dr. Arthur E. Brown of the State Board of Health was called. He said that the young man was suffering from infantile paralysis.

Reports from New York today state that during the past twenty-four hours, thirty-nine persons have died from paralysis in the State and 119 new cases have been reported. Yesterday thirty-three deaths and ninety-two cases were reported.

The State Health Council today decided that the public schools might open as scheduled. The health officials will insist on medical inspection in all schools throughout the State.

WANT CHILDREN RETURNED.

Dr. E. R. Kelley, head of the Health Department of Communicable Disease Bureau, said today:

"We can't predict or estimate what is going to happen. There is room for consolation in the fact that the cases reported are pretty well scattered, that is, there is no evidence of a new focus of the disease anywhere."

Since the regulation requiring a certificate of travel from all children under sixteen became effective in New Hampshire many Boston mothers and fathers are interested in the serious problem as to how their children at the numerous New Hampshire Summer camps are to be brought back.

Dr. Irving A. Watson, secretary of the State Board of Health of New Hampshire, at Concord, telephoned Dr. Kelley that if people with children in the different camps were unable to find the local health authorities they might communicate with Dr. Watson in Concord and he would have the children examined at once and if free from the disease, given the proper transportation certificate.

Dr. Kelley communicated this statement to Dr. Charles Dalton of the Vermont Health Board at Burlington, and Dr. A. G. Young of the Maine Health Board at Augusta.

Onset, the Summer resort which is panic-stricken by the deaths of three children from infantile paralysis, is in the town of Wareham. The quarantine order, prohibiting persons from entering or leaving the Independence Point section of Onset, was issued by the Wareham Selectmen. It is this order which is now being broken in the general getaway of Summer residents.

TYPHOID AT NANTUCKET.

The State Department of Health has dispatched Dr. Merrill Champion, health officer of the Eastern District, to make a special investigation in the Wareham district, the regular physician for that district, Dr. A. S. McKnight, having been summoned to Nantucket by an outbreak of typhoid fever there in which five cases have been reported. These include: Rebecca Parker, Margaret Underwood, Clifford Moorhead, Arthur Grant and Harry Bassett.

The majority of the Onset fugitives are returning to homes in Brockton communities around the Shoe City. The Brockton health authorities are making no move to stop them from breaking the quarantine established at Onset, but are making all those who return to Brockton report immediately to the Board of Health.

The three children who died at Point Independence were:

Bettina, three-year-old daughter of LeBaron Atherton of Brockton, head of the Atherton chain of furniture houses.

Five-year-old son of Everett Bray of Brookline.

Four-year-old son of L. N. Cotton of Newton.

Brockton is only thirty-four miles from Onset. About 2,000 Brockton persons go there for Summer vacations. The three deaths in a resort so heavily peopled by Brocktonians, with one victim from that city itself, have not only terrified all Brockton, but have had most serious effect upon Onset Summer business.

DENIAL BY WAREHAM.

The Wareham authorities brand as false the statement that the deaths of the three children at Point Independence were caused by eating berries that had been sprayed with arsenate of lead.

Persistent rumors in Brockton today were that this autopsy had been performed on Bettina Atherton, the three-year-old daughter of Lebaron Atherton of Brockton, and that arsenate of lead had been discovered.

All day yesterday and today, a case at No. 56 Glenwood avenue, one of the most select parts of Brockton, has been under observation.

Assisting the local doctors is Dr. Merrill Champion of Boston. They will not be able to decide until later whether it is a case of infantile paralysis or not.

The body of little Bettina Atherton has been brought to Brockton and placed in the tomb at Melrose Cemetery.

A fourth death in this State, in addition to the Onset victims, is reported by the State Health Department. It is that of Henry Dean, sixteen years, of Wellington Hill, Mattapan.

Eleven new cases are reported by the State authorities.

The Onset developments have focused attention on Onset and Brockton.

At a meeting of the State Public Health Council in the State House today it was decided that local health authorities in the State shall issue certificates to children under sixteen years of age who are leaving the State.

CATHOLICS LAUDED BY SLATTERY

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 22.—Stormy scenes were precipitated today in the meeting of the Catholic Women's League when a resolution was moved to separate the women's organization from the American Federation of Catholic Societies.

The motion, which was made by the Rev. J. M. Corrigan of Philadelphia, was voted down and the meeting broke up in disorder after the presiding officer, Miss Helen M. Hateley, had turned the chair over to Frances E. Slattery of Boston.

Only about half of the women voted, the recorded vote being fifty-eight against the motion and sixteen in favor of it.

Mrs. Martha Moore Avery of Boston delivered a scathing attack against women suffrage, saying:

"If we should be unfortunate enough to have a woman suffrage party in Massachusetts I would organize the Catholic women against the divorce evil which would be sure to follow."

CALLS FOR ACTIVE WORK.

Mrs. Avery also attacked socialism, saying it was allied with atheism.

Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., who addressed the women upon their civic obligations, said:

"Do not blame things on the Protestants. If you do not join in the movements for the public betterment you have no right to complain. The terrible theory of birth control needs all the corrective influences of Catholic thought in forming community opinions."

CATHOLIC PATRIOTISM.

A strong defence of the patriotism of Roman Catholics was voiced today at the session of the general federation by Francis E. Slattery, a Boston attorney. Mr. Slattery said in part:

"Designing men persist in the charge that loyalty to the Pope is inconsistent with allegiance to this country. Their motive is obvious. The flag is dear to us all. It flies over a united people. What more cunning move to crush a religion could be made than to charge its members with disloyalty and to attempt to turn against them the passions of a patriotic people?

"We find a great Catholic citizenship bitterly assailed as an enemy to the State. Let those who attack us now assure their puny selves against the powerful Napoleon who tried in vain to overthrow the church. We Catholics invite the closest scrutiny into the principles and practices of the church.

"I am an American and it is a fact that I glory in."

FAVOR BOSTON PLAN.

Considerable rivalry has developed in the fight for the next convention. The chief contenders are the delegates representing St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago and Cincinnati.

A movement which has been growing among the delegates for the reorganization of the federation was alluded in frequent speeches at the various business sessions.

The plan is to strengthen the national organization by remodelling it along the lines of the archdiocese federation of Boston, which is now the biggest unit in the national body.

Charles T. Daly, secretary of the Boston federation, spoke on the subject, and it was expected that the change would be recommended by the Right Rev. Bishop James McFaul of Newark, N. J.

Business sessions were held today by all the organizations of the Federation.

MASS MEETING TONIGHT.

There will be a mass meeting tonight at Cooper Union under the auspices of the German Catholic Central Verein and a banquet of the Catholic Young Men's Union at the Park Avenue Hotel.

Joseph Frey, president of the Verein, will preside at the mass meeting and the delegates will be welcomed by Governor Whitman. The speakers will include Archbishop Bonzano, the apostolic delegate to the United States, and the Rev. James F. Zipf of St. Louis.

DEMOCRATS QUELL REVOLT IN SENATE

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The Democratic insurgent movement against the administration legislative program was broken down this afternoon. The Senate voted, 37 to 23, against aidetracking the emergency revenue bill to make way for the immigration bill containing the literary test.

The vote was taken after it had been learned that President Wilson had informed callers today that he would veto the immigration bill if it came before him again containing the literacy test.

SEEK 30 ARRESTS AT NANTASKET

The Metropolitan Police today made application for thirty warrants for the arrest of Nantasket Summer residents who are charged with throwing a baseball on the reservation. The Hingham Court is now deliberating the issuing of the warrants, which are said to include the names of some of the best known men and women in Hull. The police want to make a test case of the matter, they explain, and on Sunday took the names and addresses of nearly two score ball players on the beach.

HIT BY AUTO IN WEDDING CHASE

Harold Norwood, eighteen years old, of Lynn, was probably fatally injured when he was hit by an automobile in which two men were chasing a newly married couple.

Norwood is at the Lynn Hospital with a fracture of the skull, a broken leg and other injuries and is not expected to recover.

Francis W. Middleton and Charles A. Perry were in the machine. They had been guests at the wedding in Lynn of Caleb H. Niles, principal of the Richfield, Ct., high school, and Miss Grace B. Darling. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Niles attempted to steal away in a taxicab. The two men decided to try to head them off, and jumped into Middleton's car. They trailed the cab until they reached Fox Hill bridge, where Norwood's car was standing beside the road. As the pursuers passed the car, the young man stepped squarely into their path.

Middleton lives on Shurtleff street, Chelsea.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—The waning of the Summer season the opening of the theatres devoted to the spoken drama, have no effect upon the attendance at the Majestic Theatre, where that daring photoplay, "Where Are My Children?" in finishing its second month in this city. Night after night and day after day it is the same story, seats filled for each of the four performances and people standing in line for tickets in the lobby.

GAIETY THEATRE—The Gaiety opened the season yesterday afternoon with Sam Sidman's own show in a two-act farce, entitled "Welcome to Our City," presented in four scenes. Mr. Sidman has been seen here for several seasons with other companies, but this year he has his own show appearing in the character of Ludwig Meyer, a German, and is ably assisted in his comedy efforts by James E. Horne and William Anderson in French and Irish characters.

TWO FEATURE ACTS AT KEITH'S

By FRED J. McISAAC.

THEY are getting lavish with headliners at Keith's recently. Two of the kind of people who would top any ordinary bill are fighting for honors at the big Washington street playhouse this week.

Irene Franklin, with husband, Burton Green, thrown in for good measure, and Bert Fitzgibbons, the Gaffyfill, are the stars.

Irene Franklin towers over most women comedians like the Statue of Liberty over an inkstand. She is a versatile and gifted artist with a wealth of good material, most of which she is said to owe to husband Green. She sang "We've Got a Nest Built at Our House," "The Old Maid's Home for Mine," "The Cash Girl" and "The Moral Tale of a Chorus Girl's Career," and every one of them went with a bang.

Fitzgibbons is unquestionably funny. His eccentricities, mannerisms and wastefulness with straw hats and wavs rock the house. But friend Bertie ought to acquire some new material, for a lot of his stuff has moss growing on it.

A clever foreign dancing act is that of Mitchell Martin and Edith Fabrini. They are revealed as nude statues which, on to life, don fashionable costumes which happen to be laying around and do a fantasy on the contrast.

Burley and Burley, two quaint English comedians and knockabouts, were bright, and so was Ed Morton. Two of the original six musical Curtis still give good entertainment and the other numbers on the big bill combined to make a good Summer show.

WILBUR—Probably no attraction ever started a second week in August with better record for both Tuesday testing audiences and box office receipts than "Very Good Eddie," the musical comedy which entertained an audience last evening at the Wilbur Theatre which occupied every seat and every available bit of standing room.

THE FENWAY THEATRE—One of the biggest crowds seen at the Fenway during the present Summer expressed its approval of the show last evening. Carlyle Blackwell and Ethel Clayton in "A Woman's Way," will no doubt draw big crowds today and tomorrow, and the other attractions are all of the usual high standard maintained at the Fenway.

NORUMBEGA PARK—Photo-plays at each evening performance and excellent vaudeville and matinees complete the program at Norumbega this week. For the first three nights the feature picture is "Hettina Von Gluck," a five-reel Blue Bird production based on a French classic of Selwyn's "Rolling Stones."

"KATINKA" IS SHUBERT'S OPENER

"KATINKA," with T. Roy Barnes, the notable musical comedy success of last season, with a record of a whole year in New York, will be the opening attraction of the regular season at the Shubert Theatre next Monday evening.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—There is no denying the high quality of entertainment furnished by Marcus Loew for his St. James Theatre at Huntington avenue for the early half of this week. Every number offered is in the headline division and of the culture that will satisfy the most critical amusement seeker. William Morrell and company in "On the Country Road," presents a clever skit in which many laughs are supplied. Beatrice Lambert, styled as the American nightingale, has an exceptionally fine voice, which was skillfully demonstrated in a series of excellent numbers; William Ess shows rare versatility in a ventriloquial oddity; Burke and Broderick scored as classy dancers, while the Tyro Trio gave every evidence of being in a class by themselves as sensational wire walkers. The feature photoplay is Ella Hall in a remarkably interesting five-reel drama, "Little Eva Eclipsed," to which Miss Hall's magnetism is shown at her best.

PARK THEATRE—Would you divorce your wife if you saw another man kissing her hand? Don't be hasty now. Better wait and see the "Perils of Divorce" in five tremendous reels which heads the program at the Park Theatre this week, featuring Frank Sheridan and Edna Wallace Hopper, two of stage drama's greatest dramatic stars. They appear to good advantage in this wonderful production. Another attraction on the program is "Where Is My Daughter?" in five acts.

GLOBE THEATRE—The delightfully cool Globe Theatre with its Summer program of all-feature photoplays, still continues to please the large number of movie lovers that yesterday enjoyed a well arranged program by Manager Frank Meagher. The headline photo production presented yesterday was Helen Rossen in "The Sign of the Spade," a gripping human five-reeler, well staged and well acted.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—They call the entertainment at Gordon's Olympia this week a "Pennant Winning Show," and it certainly strikes a high average with its two big picture features and its excellent vaudeville. Edmund Breese, an old favorite favorite, is seen in "The Weakness of Strength" with Ormi Hawley and Gwen Moore is featured with Marguerite Courtot in a picturization of Selwyn's "Rolling Stones."

COLONIAL IS OPENED WITH NEW SHOW

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"THE Amber Empress," a musical play, in two acts, by Zoel Parenteau and Marcus Connelly was given at the Colonial last night under the auspices of Corey & Ritter, the newest firm of producers.

This is the operetta which was announced for production at the Colonial three months ago, and which was withdrawn so that the book might be improved.

There was a large audience to celebrate the opening of the Colonial's season, and to applaud the unusual music of the piece.

As soon as the curtain rose it was evident that this was a luxuriant production. I have no doubt that the bill for scenery and costumes, and the weekly payroll would make many of the old managers shudder. The two settings are in Venice, and they are gorgeous in color and imposing and substantial in construction.

MANY STARS IN CAST.

There is a huge cast and an enormous chorus. Well-known names are as numerous on the program as flies in a lunchroom. Most of them have very little to do. We find Emma Janvier, one of the best eccentric comedienes in America, playing a conventional rich widow, Frank Lalor wandering around in a tall hat and dress suit, and Colin Campbell doing his act as motion picture photographer.

"The Amber Empress" is not a colored queen of an East Indian island as might be suspected, but the heroine of a motion picture company laid in Venice. This accounts for the presence of a big picture company in Romeo and Juliet costumes in juxtaposition to Frank Lalor's dress suit. Mabel Wilbur, of "Merry Widow" fame, came from retirement to play the title role.

Fred Lennox came from retirement at the corner of Forty-second street and Broadway to play an Italian Count in love with the widow and a rival of that mirror of fashion Lalor. There are two or three other love affairs which are of no importance except for an excuse for song.

It may as well be admitted that this show is a singing and dancing affair. There is rarely a laugh in the lines. Most of the comedy is shenanigan. But the music is way above the average. Parenteau has turned out a score that is gay and graceful, sparkling and catchy. The orchestration is worthy of the melodies and the singing of the principals worthy of both.

SHOW FULL OF DUETS.

Miss Wilbur has a clear, bell-like soprano and knows how to put a song over. Thomas Conkey owns a rich and manly baritone and together they deliver a gem of a duet called "There Is Always One You Can't Forget" which everybody will soon be singing.

The show is full of duets, trios and quartets and they are all well done. Donald MacDonald, a juvenile who can dance and sing, finds a worthy partner in Louise Allen, a dainty comedienne. They have a Chinese song and dance that takes a dozen encores.

The chorus is exceptionally well chosen and the costumes are most becoming. If "The Amber Empress" succeeds, its music will carry it over, and the music is so good that the piece should be successful.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—Inside the Orpheum Theatre yesterday all was cool and in a fitting condition for a thoroughly enjoyable three-hour show that Marcus Loew provided as a counter attraction to the hot weather. There were two feature acts to top the bill. Arthur Lipton, who has made his mark in musical comedy in the Weber and Fields and "Sun" companies, appeared in a new act written by Blanche Merrill, "Vaudeville in a Legitimate Way."

The remainder of the bill included Louise Kent and her company in the clever drama, "Sold;" Corcoran and Mack, who presented a very good laughing act; Malone and Malone in new acrobatic dances; Lockhart Brothers, knockabout acrobats, and others. The latest Pathe News and a Keystone comedy were shown, together with the feature photoplay, Norma Talmadge in "The Devil's Needle."

MEDFORD BOULEVARD THEATRE —There is a bright, breezy musical comedy being presented this week at the Medford Boulevard Summer Theatre, and if the two capacity attendances yesterday may be taken as a criterion, then its success is assured.

The attraction, "A Trip to Happyland," is all that the name implies, for that joyful comedian, Ben Loring, leads the audience through a maze of complicated situations that are ludicrous in the extreme and cause no end of laughter.

BOSTON THEATRE—One of the finest photoplays ever shown on a Boston screen heads the big four-hour show of pictures and vaudeville offered at the Boston Theatre yesterday. It is entitled "The Light at Dusk," and is presented by an all-star cast headed by Orrin Johnson, the distinguished legitimate actor.

The big comedy feature of the bill is provided by Raymond Hitchcock and Flora Zabelle, in the amusing two-part comedy, "The Ring-Tailed Rhinoceros."

WALDRON'S CASINO — Waldron's Casino was opened for the regular season of 1916-1917 yesterday afternoon and evening with two performances of May Spelgel's revue and entertainment, which the coming attractions at the Casino will have great difficulty in surpassing in points of strong cast of local favorites and sumptuousness of costuming and scenery.

COPLEY PLAZA POPS—"The Pops" at the Copley-Plaza continue to draw goodly audiences. Mr. Maquarre and his band are playing agreeable Summer programs.

MODERN THEATRE—Two contrasting features make up the bill that was shown at the Modern Theatre yesterday, each with a woman as star, but each story as widely different as possible. In the William Fox production Virginia Pearson in "Daredevil Kate," the atmosphere is that of a Western mining and manufacturing

HOWARD ATHENAEUM—There was much fun offered at the Howard Athenaeum yesterday, the occasion being the opening of the burlesque season. "The Lady Buccaneers" scored a decided hit throughout. It was one of the best shows ever offered at that house and the girls were all daintily attired in gowns that gave them a decidedly distinguished appearance

Hairs Will Vanish After This Treatment

(Toilet Helps)

You can keep your skin free from hair or fuzz by the occasional use of plain delatone and in using it you need have no fear of marring or injuring the skin. A thick paste is made by mixing some of the powdered delatone with water. Then spread on the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and all traces of hair have vanished. M'CALL TO CALL LEGISLATIVE SESSION

As a result of Governor McCall's announcement that he would call a special session of the Legislature, members of the General Court today started their campaign to prepare the measure which will be taken up at the gathering.

The Governor stated that the Legislature will be asked to take up the complications arising from the Suffolk County apportionment, the matter of caring for dependent families of Massachusetts troops at the border, payment of transportation home of soldiers discharged in Texas and the arranging of the voting system so that the boys at the front may cast ballots for presidential electors, United States Senator and for Congressmen.

Secretary Long issued the following statement for Governor McCall:

"The Governor has practically decided to ask the Council to authorize the calling of a special session of the Legislature, if one had been called in June, before the situation at the border had developed and before it was known what action Congress would take upon the voting of soldiers and their compensation and the care of their families, it would have been difficult to decide what legislation was appropriate. Furthermore, if a special session had then been held, another session in autumn might have been necessary to deal with the action of the Reapportionment Committee and prevent the disfranchisement of Suffolk County.

TO TAKE UP COUNTY ROW.

"Although the time for holding the primaries is in the near future, it is not yet known what the legislative districts for Suffolk are to be. In a contingency which seems likely to occur, legislative action will be imperative to secure to Suffolk County its representation in the next General Court.

"It now seems probable that the Massachusetts troops will be kept at the border until after the election. The Governor is strongly of the opinion that our soldiers should not be penalized for their patriotism by the loss of their votes, but that provision should be made to have their votes cast and counted. The constitution of Massachusetts does not permit voting by State officers outside the State, but there are presidential electors, one Senator and sixteen representatives in Congress to be chosen, and the Legislature has the power to provide for extra-territorial voting for candidates for these offices.

WANTS TO AID SOLDIERS.

"The men in the National Guard, with dependent families, have a right to be discharged, but the administration has thus far failed to make provision for paying for their transportation to their homes. In the case of private soldiers this cost will be much greater than the pay they have received since they went out of the State.

"An appropriation should be made by the Legislature to pay their expenses home. The Volunteer Aid Committee has rendered splendid service, but it was only designed primarily to prevent distress while the situation was unfolding.

"The Legislature, when it meets, will be able to take steps against the possibility of suffering by dependent families, and it will be able also to deal with the other questions arising from the sending of our soldiers to the border."

LABOR PEACE RESPONSIBILITY UP TO RAILROAD EXECUTIVES

The railroad executives were plainly determined to give the matter full consideration. They proposed to thresh over every detail of the President's proposal and every possible effect of his plan on the railroad industry before committing themselves upon it. It was apparent that their course would consume time and it was expected that their reply hardly would be ready during the day.

CONFIDENT OF SETTLEMENT.

Recognizing the probability of delay President Wilson turned his attention temporarily to other matters. For the first time since the President took charge of the strike negotiations, he called his Cabinet to the White House today for a routine meeting.

A new feature entered the situation today, when Chairman Hurley of the Federal Trade Commission appeared at the hotel where the railroad executives have headquarters. He buttonholed a dozen of the western road executives and held what appeared to be heated conferences with them in various parts of the lobby. He declared he had no message from the President and that his interest was purely personal. He expressed confidence that a settlement would be reached, but said that he was unable to say just what position the railroad executives would take.

The executives' committee deserted the headquarters hotel and took up consideration of the problem at the Metropolitan Club, Washington's most exclusive social institution. The members of the committee said it was impossible to guess how long it would take them to formulate their report.

The railway brotherhood committee met again at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Previously they accepted an invitation to visit the capitol at 2 o'clock as the guests of Vice-President Marshall.

One group of railroad executives, led by the Old Guard of railroading, was in fighting mood. They embraced such men as E. P. Ripley, dean of the executives, a seventy-one-year-old veteran, grim, sour and bitter, the vigorous old Santa Fe president formed the centre of a group who insisted the time had come to fight to determine who is to run the railroads of the country.

They were for an out and out refusal of any settlement which did not put all of the demands of the men in the hands of an impartial board for arbitration.

PACIFISTS GAIN STRENGTH.

On the other hand, a small group of pacifists favored accepting the President's demands as they stand, and depending upon time to show the futility of an effort to force an eight-hour day in train service. They proposed that the railroads agree to the President's proposals and then demonstrate that the plan would not work. This group gained strength as the conference proceeded.

One counter proposition which met with some favor with the executives would call upon the President to give assurance that, after the railroads agree to accept the eight-hour day, there will be forthcoming a legal, bonafide government agency to determine the collateral questions in dispute. Both pacifists and belligerents in the conference were in favor of this plan, if nothing further could be secured.

CONFIDENT OF PEACE.

While the executives threshed over the situation, government officials were confident that the President's ultimatum would finally bring peace.

Representatives of the four Brotherhoods held a formal meeting this forenoon, just to keep the men together, the leaders said. They were growing impatient at the long delay by the representatives of the roads, but the leaders insisted upon playing a waiting game. Strike orders, however, were ready to be issued at any time the railroad executives made it plain that a settlement could not be reached.

Elihu Lee, chairman of the National Conference Committee, explained the position of the railroads in a statement issued here. The statement follows:

REFUSE MEN'S DEMANDS.

"That the railroads should grant, under threat of a national strike, a $50,000,000 preferment to a small minority of their employes, without a hearing before a public tribunal, is inconceivable in a democracy like ours.

"All questions at issue—wages, hours, rests, operating conditions—these are submerged by the greater issue: Shall arbitration be abandoned in the settlement of industrial disputes?

"If we are to throw arbitration into the scrap heap, what hope can there be in America for industrial peace in the future?

"A nation-wide strike is unthinkable when the railroads are urging that all the matters in dispute be placed before any tribunal constituted by public authority.

Brotherhoods Give Out Statement on Crisis.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Officials of the four brotherhoods this afternoon made public a statement which paralleled the situation to the fable of the "Golden Goose." The statement follows:

"Don't kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

"Every day or so this old bromide is handed to the railroad man, and reduced to a basic proportion, what does it mean?

RECOUNT OLD FABLE.

"We remember the old story of the chap who found out one morning that his goose had laid a golden egg; being an avoricious fellow, he wanted all out of the goose and thereby closed down the works. The inference is that he lived poorer, wiser and unhappier the rest of his days.

"Now railroad employes, who demand a work day that will give them some hope of expanding their working days and keep them a year or so longer away from the dead line and the bread line, are admonished 'not to kill the goose.' The railroads in this instance assuming to be the goose, and, for illustration purposes, we will let it go at that.

"Now we are accused of making a raid on the 'grocery' and the bosses are warning not to kill off the goose nor even disturb her, for the goose is in a delicate way and the possibilities for excessive wear and tear on the goose egg factory may mean ill health for the goose and, rather than upset the even trend of things, we had better not insist upon another egg right now. That is we 'must not kill the goose that lays the golden egg.'

NOT APT TODAY.

"This is old stuff. It used to be good stuff, but it is not good stuff any more. We have been feeding this goose until it has become 'some goose,' where it has not been squeezed too much, it is a healthy goose, so there is not much alarm over its general state of health. It is also a fat goose, and, viewing all the phases of the situation, railroad men believe the admonition not to kill the goose means 'Keep on feeding the goose ten hours a day and let the bosses gather the eggs, which may not hold to the high pressure average, if the goose is fed eight hours a day.'

"For the sake of the health of the goose, the men will take a chance on dieting the invalid on eight hours high pressure feed.

"Anyhow this goose business ought to be on a fifty-fifty basis, so that one side of the house will not be all goose and the other all 'gooseo.'"

Firemen Idle 35 Days.

The Melrose fire department has not heard an alarm for fire since July 14, a stretch of thirty-eight consecutive days.

CUBAN WOMAN AND SON HURT IN CRASH

Bretton Woods, N. H., Aug. 22.—Mrs. Augusie de Bustamente, whose husband is a member of the Cuban Senate and a leading lawyer of Havana, had an arm and leg broken and her son Gustavo two fingers broken this afternoon when their automobile collided with a car owned and driven by Irving Stiles of Littleton on a sharp turn near Lancaster.

Senor de Bustamente, who was also riding in the machine, escaped uninjured. The family has been staying at the Mt. Washington Hotel.

The submarine K-8 carried off gunnery honors in the submarine flotilla against twenty-three competitors with a perfect mark of 100.

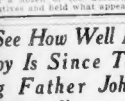
The Galveston stood first among the light cruisers with 85.758, while the Dolphin headed the list of gunboats with 77.685.

MERRY-GO-ROUNDS BARRED BY CURLEY

Mayor Curley has placed the official ban on merry-go-rounds as a means of amusement in Boston. If they prove a necessity as a means of entertainment the charge for rides will not be permitted to exceed two cents.

The Mayor showed his opposition to the noisy machine following a hearing on the petition for a permit to erect and maintain a merry-go-round on the Franklin Park Playstead. This permit was denied and Chairman Dillon of the park and recreation department was directed to reject all bids.

"See How Well My Boy Is Since Taking Father John's Medicine."



"My boy was very ill for nine months with throat trouble and lost weight every day. We had four different doctors who tried to find some means of saving his life but they had to give the case up. I decided to give Father John's Medicine a trial and was soon convinced that it was helping him very much. Now look at his photo and see how healthy he is." (Signed) Mrs. K. J. Jaques, 88 Whittenton St., Taunton, Mass.

For a tissue builder to make new flesh and strength for young and old nothing equals Father John's Medicine which is pure and wholesome nourishment free from alcohol or dangerous drugs.—Advertisement.

Various Forms Of Headache

"It is necessary in order to treat headache properly to understand the causes which produce the affection," says Dr. J. W. Ray of Bloxton, Ala. Continuing he says: "Physicians cannot even begin the treatment of a disease without knowing what causes give rise to it, and we must remember that headache is to be treated according to the same rule. We must not only be particular to give a remedy intended to counteract the cause which produces the headache, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain until the cause of the trouble has been removed. To answer this purpose, anti-kamnia tablets will be found a most convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one to three hours gives comfort and rest in the most severe cases of headache, neuralgia and particularly the headaches of women.

When we have been subject to regular attacks of sick headache, we should caution him to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is better than "Asteeda," and when he feels the least sign of an oncoming attack he should take two A-K Tablets. Each patients should always be instructed to carry a few anti-kamnia tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. These tablets are prompt in action and can be depended on to produce relief in a very few minutes. Ask for A-K Tablets.

GIVES BLOOD IN VAIN EFFORT TO SAVE GIRL

Dr. Charles J. C. Gillon of the City Hospital staff gave a quart of his own blood in a vain effort to save the life of Marion Graves, twelve years old, of Havre street, East Boston.

Marion was taken to the hospital Saturday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graves, for treatment of her tonsils and adenoids. The operation was performed and the child appeared to be recovering normally when hemorrhages suddenly developed. The attending physicians consulted and agreed that only by blood transfusion could the girl's life be saved.

Dr. Gillon at once offered himself.

Young, in the best of health, he felt he could give a quart of his blood without danger to himself. He did so and the transfusion operation was performed by Dr. H. H. Loeder, assisted by Dr. Howard Settle.

Marion seemed greatly benefited by the injection of new blood and the doctors felt certain she would recover. Then suddenly there was a decided reaction. The child sank rapidly and all efforts to aid her proved futile.

'GENTLEMEN TRAMPS' ARE UNDER ARREST

Providence, R. I., Aug. 22.—Chester Geuyer, twenty-two, of Roslindale, Mass., and Clifton A. Johnson, twenty-one, of Brockton, were arrested here today charged with driving off an automobile. Geuyer and Johnson gave fictitious names. The police found in their effects hotel keys from Portland, Worcester, Boston and other cities and application scholarship blanks.

They admitted to Chief Inspector William F. O'Neil they are "gentlemen tramps."

According to police here, they traveled about the country representing themselves as students. A letter from Geuyer's mother at Onset, bidding her son "be a good boy," was found.

Print Workers Strike.

Fall River, Aug. 22.—The printers and calendar room help of the American Printing Company, the M. C. D. Borden plant, went out on strike today in an effort to secure shorter working hours.

WOULD AID TOURISTS TO NEW ENGLAND

Washington, Aug. 22.—Andrew J. Peters, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, has requested the Interstate Commerce Commission to require or induce railroad companies whose lines extend to New England to make arrangements for routing tourists from northern Summer resorts around New York, so as to prevent them from being held up by the quarantine against infantile paralysis.

MORE DAYLIGHT IS WANTED BY REALTY MEN

The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange has come out in favor of saving daylight by moving the clock forward one hour. The exchange has addressed a letter to the New England Congressmen at Washington setting forth the position of the real estate men. Following is the letter, signed by President George F. Washburn:

"It is the judgment of the exchange, with its State-wide membership of over 1,000 business men, that the suggested reform ought not longer to be delayed.

"The reasons are many and well known, but the following appeal especially to business men:

GOOD BUSINESS POLICY.

"Any increased use of daylight hours is good business policy.

"It would be a wonderful advantage to employes and would make for added efficiency.

"Employes would benefit greatly in the improved health incident upon more rational hours of outdoor life and amusements.

"It will mean saving of millions of dollars annually to manufacturers, merchants, business men and householders in reduced costs of lighting and heating.

MAKE TRAVEL SAFER.

"The number of street accidents will be greatly reduced because business hours will be more largely daylight hours.

"In a general way it spells greater efficiency, greater economy and greater comfort.

"Finally, it is the rational thing.

"We, therefore urge you to support such proposed legislation."

The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange was the first business organization in New England to take formal action in favor of daylight saving.

CHINESE PICNIC IN AMERICAN STYLE

All the members of On Leong Tong packed their lunch baskets and deserted Boston's Chinatown for Cauobie Lake, N. H., where they held a picnic—American fashion. One of the disappointments was the failure of Kungpah Moo, the Chinese dragon, to perambulate about the grounds. It takes three live Chinamen to make him come to life, but they declined on account of the heat. They didn't eat chop suey, nor yet fried yung ai, nor hocka mein, but good old New England fried chicken, mashed potatoes and ice cream.

Soo Wing, Boston court interpreter, and Yah Wah Hop and Chih Fun Eng, merchants, all of Oxford street, acted as committee.

EDISON RATES ARE CALLED EXCESSIVE

A petition asking for a reduction of rates for electric current furnished by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has been filed with the Gas and Electric Light Commission and a hearing will be scheduled within a short time. The petition states the sixteen believe the "rates to be excessive."

The commission is urged to investigate conditions and pass on the question. Small, Maynard & Company, the New England Newspaper Publishing Company and fifty other Boston consumers of electric current are the petitioners.

BLOODLESS VICTORY FOR GUARDSMEN

Washington, Aug. 22.—Secretary of War Baker believes the guardsmen on the border are winning "bloodless" victories. The soldiers, says the secretary, are preventing the loss of life.

Mr. Baker, in writing to parents of guardsmen, declares the soldier will be kept in the service until they can be withdrawn without endangering the peace along the boundary.

MEANEST MAN GETS BOY'S WATCH MONEY

The "meanest" medal will be pinned, if he can be found, on the man who spied eleven-year-old Hubert May clutching two one-dollar bills in a Washington street auction room, waiting for a good chance to bid on a watch. The man persuaded the boy to go to Scollay square and wait in the door while the man bought a "bully" watch. Hubert waited an hour, then told the police.

Hotel Thief Gets $1,021.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 22.—While C. W. Borman, cleric at Hotel Olmsted, Cleveland's newest hotel was absent from his care for four minutes just after daybreak, a thief got away with cash boxes containing $1,021.

Mays vs. Coveleskie
Indians Seek Revenge

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

The World's Champions are going along at a pace that should pile up that lead necessary for them to have before they start upon their swing about the East and West. They looked like a real ball club in that shut-out game and while they had the breaks they in a large degree forced them. It is such playing as this, taking chances within reason and keeping the old fighting spirit up, that will land them where President J. J. Lannin and the fans of Greater Boston like to see them.

The problem of selection of pitchers for today's game is something that may tax the minds of Carrigan and Fohl, for there is no knowing how the fingers will warm up. Provided that Carl Mays hasn't lost all his stuff over night and that Coveleskie hasn't broken an arm, these should be the men to face each other in the conflict this afternoon.

New York is helping some but the Browns refuse to be beaten, so they must be regarded as a club that has to be reckoned with. Cleveland has a good ball club aside from Tris Speaker, who would put life into anything short of a corpse. They have made a gallant battle for the flag but do not look to have the punch. The club, however, in the West vs. West series that comes after the close of the Western invasion of the East is apt to make it very merry for Chicago and the other Western cities.

All this will help immensely for the reason that while Western clubs, who occupy three of the positions in the first division are eating each other up, the Champions are playing in the East against New York, Philadelphia and Washington.

That is pretty good from a percentage basis provided the champions hold true to form in the remaining games against Cleveland, Detroit and the Browns.

ALL GOING GOOD.

Hooper makes difficult catches appear easy to the uninitiated, and Larry Gardner is playing the best ball of his career. Lewis is forgetting much that has worried him in the past and is doing a lion's share, both offensively and defensively. Scott is keeping up to the standard, and Hobby, if played regularly against left and right handers, would be classed with the best. He is hitting and fielding with any of them in the big leagues, and while there is no kick coming on Gainer, who is a fine ball player, it seems rather foolish to keep switching. Hobby today looks to be able to keep more than his end up, and the fans are with him.

PLENTY OF SPEED.

There is plenty of speed in the Red Sox and they have attempted lately to pull the double squeeze. Each time they have failed but it has been close. That is the kind of a game that wins and the kind of a contest the fans like to turn out to see. The attendance for the home stay has beaten last season's record widely, which shows where the fans of Greater Boston place their interest.

Cleveland is a tough club to beat, and the Tigers, who next appear, are equally dangerous, while the Browns are going so fast the entire league is sitting up and taking notice.

I may be permitted with pardonable pride to point to the files of the AMERICAN in the early Spring. There will be found the statements that the Browns upon their first trip East looked to be about the best club in either league and that they had a leader whose ability matched any manager's. The other statement was sent from Hot Springs and was that the Red Sox would repeat. Both look pretty good at this stage of the race.

SOX NOTES

IT was some day—some crowd and some game. The farmers and Knights of Columbus divided the honors. President J. J. Lannin is to be congratulated.

SCOTT won the only box of cigars Alepso Temple gave for an extra base hit in the game. There were distributions later, for Alepso came armed for many hits.

HOOPER had too much speed on Lewis' slow pop to Chapman. Being certified beyond third, and was out.

THREE clear hits for no runs is worth mentioning. There wasn't any question about these singles either.

LEWIS made a dazzling running catch in the second, running up on the bank for it. It was as good as he ever made.

HOOPER'S catch of Speaker's drive in the fourth was a dandy. He had a long run for it.

O'NEILL'S work on Scott when he grabbed a foul was about as good as has been seen by any catcher this season.

BARRY made a wonderful play on O'Neill in the third, jumping in the air, knocking Gardner back and to be sure single, and getting the catcher at first.

SECRETARY EDDIE RILEY'S comment as he viewed his gift of Boston Coach, K. of C.: "That is the finest chain I ever saw."

Mitchell Some Leader
Nehf in Final Soiree

Cincinnati, Aug. 22.—Having won the great majority of his managerial starts, Fred Mitchell, whom some have labelled "Stallings' Right Eye," is today resting on his laurels, as it were. As yet he doesn't know whether or not he's acting manager today or simply a coach. If he acts as manager, Art Nehf seems reasonably certain of opposing Big Fred Toney in the Braves' last start here.

Mitchell's [illegible] since as acting manager leads folks all over the circuit to wonder just why some club hasn't grabbed him off to lead their forlorn hopes. He takes the Braves when Stallings goes away and makes them a consistent winning aggregation. He managed with ability and shows good judgement in every move he makes.

KONEY SOME WISE.

Yesterday he had them show the fans a thing or two when they grabbed their second win of the series by a two to one score. Of course, Big Ed Konetchy had considerable to do with the win, for it was his stout slugging which sent both runs over. The combined efforts of Mitchell, Rudolph and Konetchy plus the fine work of the Cubs and Pirates, enabled the Braves to make substantial gains which landed them back in second place.

Now's the time for the Braves to quit resting off games, as they did in St. Louis, and go on about their business. They are back in the race; back in the very thick of it. Hugh Fullerton generally has the right dope. Sunday he named the Braves as the one best bet in the National League Marathon, and though the forecast drew a lot of snickering in certain quarters of this broad land, this morning it's proven to be just about official.

THAT'S NINE FOR DICK.

While the Braves would have been blanked without Konetchy's two larroping line smashes, little Dick Rudolph mustn't be overlooked. He had a brushing battle with Schneider, but landed right side up, thereby tacking on his ninth successive victory.

If Art Nehf, the hurler slated to face the Reds today, comes through the Braves will feel pretty cocky over their chances for another win at least.

They received a setback the other two times they showed here this season, but if they grab today's contest they'll not be in danger of having the Reds stop them again this year, except when Matty's boys journey to Boston in September, and the Reds have been mean for the Braves on their own lot.

Since they still have about a dozen games to play with Philadelphia and Brooklyn, the Braves are more hopeful of the pennant now than ever before because they figure they can cut down those two clubs themselves.

EIGHT NEW PLAYERS CORRALED BY MACK

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—Eight players from the Pacific Coast, the New York State, the Southern Association and the Rocky Mountain leagues will join the Philadelphia American League club this Fall and next Spring, according to an announcement made today by Manager Connie Mack.

The new players include Ping Bodie of San Francisco, leading hitter of the Pacific Coast League, and Outfielder Thrasher of Atlanta, who is leading the Southern Association in hitting. The others are Pitcher Johnson and Infielder Bates of Vernon, Cal.; Pitcher Veck and Outfielder Brown of Harrisburg, Pa.; Pitcher Farnham of Raleigh, N. C., and Infielder Grover of Battle, Mont.

WOMEN PLAY IN BIG POLO MATCH

New York, Aug. 22.—The Westchester Polo Club will stage a polo match today in which one woman will be on each team.

Mrs. Phillip Stevenson of Philadelphia will play on the team with Saddle Sanford, Cornelius Vanderbilt, H. P. Whitney and John Winmacken, Jr. On the opposing team will be Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Lorillard Taller, James A. Burden, Jr. and J. C. Cooley.

ART HOFMAN BACK WITH HIS OLD TEAM

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Arthur Hofman is back with the Cubs. He was picked up by Manager Donovan of the Yankees a fortnight ago when "Wild Bill" was in sore need of outfielders, but as his cripples are getting back in the game he gave the veteran his walking papers. Joe Kelly, the Cubs' fly-chaser, is laid up with a twisted ankle and Hofman has been signed to fill out. He got one hit and did some great fielding in yesterday's game, doing his full part in laying out the Dodgers.

Lehane Turns in Low Score in Press Tourney

Good golf was exhibited by the majority of the players in the annual invitation tournament of the Boston Press Club over the Wollaston links.

R. C. Lehane, Commonwealth Club, one of the strongest golfers at the Chestnut Hill Club, had the distinction of leading John H. Sullivan, Jr. and Paul Tewksbury, both of the Woodland Club, for medal honors.

Lehane was around 76, one stroke better than Sullivan and Tewksbury and three strokes better than N. A. Dempsey and L. B. Paton.

The first round of match play in all divisions is being played today. All golfers who qualified are requested to get in touch with the player drawn against him and arrange for a starting time.

Deal for 'Zim' Not Dead

Braves May Land Him

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Though earlier reports from Chicago would lead to the belief that the Braves don't stand any chance of securing Heinie Zimmerman, Business Manager Hapgood is still willing to bet a good cigar that the Great Zim comes to Boston. Hapgood is of the impression that Weeghman, Tinker and company are attempting to force Stallings into something he doesn't care to do. Possibly they want Maranville and Rudolph.

It's known that the Cubs are done with Zimmerman. It's simply a question of what club acquires his services. The offer for him must be especially attractive to arouse any enthusiasm on the part of the Chicago owner and manager. In addition to the Braves, New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn are angling for him.

THE OFFERINGS.

Pat Moran of the Phillies is said to have offered the Cubs Milton Stock and a cash consideration for the great one. New York came to time with an offer of Benny Kauff and more cash. Neither of these proved attractive, inasmuch as the Cub men don't want money. They are after players of ability.

C. Hercules Ebbets and his portly manager, Wilbert Robinson, kicked in with an offer of Ollie O'Mara and Pitcher Appleton. This offer didn't seem to please Tinker in the least. If O'Mara won't go in Brooklyn, it's a cinch he won't go in Chicago. Appleton hasn't set the world on fire as a chucker this year.

Then came Stallings and Hapgood with an offer which seemed to please Weeghman and Tinker far more than any previously made. Just what they offered isn't known. The Cubs seek an infielder, a pitcher and a catcher. The Braves are in position to offer Evers, Egan or Fitzpatrick, any one of the three. Stallings, it is believed, wouldn't want to part with Fitz.

Tinker gazes wrathfully at several of the Braves hurlers and he can get one of them, that is providing he hands Zim over in return. Of the backstops Stallings wouldn't consider parting with Gowdy and that leaves Blackburn and Tragesser as the offering. Either one of this pair would prove a handy man for Tinker.

The confident way in which Hapgood speaks forces one to believe that the baseball public likes to well—hit. He is the leading home run hitter of the Eastern League.

LOW A SLUGGER.

Fletcher Low, formerly of Dartmouth and the Braves, should be a popular ball player with Hartford fans, as he can do that one thing that the baseball public likes to well—hit. He is the leading home run hitter of the Eastern League.

Mack on With Moran Coming in at 136 Lbs.

By RINGSIDE.

Exactly what comes to pass in tonight's fistic soiree at the Arena, principals: Frankie Mack of Beachmont and Vic Moran of New Orleans, is hard to prophesy with any reasonable amount of certainty. Suffice it to say it looms up as a corking good match, the rival boxers are noted for their willingness and aggressiveness, and the morning reports from the respective camps were to the effect both boys were in tip-top trim.

It's a bout that means a terrific lot in the fortunes of both battlers. Mack, rated as a fistic star elsewhere, has never experienced much luck in local rings. His opponents have been poorly selected; in fact, Walter Butler and Eddie Murphy, home products, are the only youths who have been seen against him at entertainments presided over by the Armory A. A.

Around the land, likewise down in Havana, Mack has shown to advantage. In New York he gained victories over Joe Shugrue, Willie Beecher, not once, but twice; Walter Mohr and "Kapper" O'Neill among others. Over in Rochester Mack treated ex-Matt Wells to an out-and-out walloping; in fact, Frankie really softened up the veteran Britisher for Johnny Dundee, who got him later here in Boston.

The big number in Mack's ring repertoire was his twenty-one round battle with Ted (Kid) Lewis in Havana the day before Jess Willard knocked out Jack Johnson. Was the twenty-one round? Because at the end of twenty rounds of merry milling the referee was unable to separate them. Hence, he ordered the extra session. In it Lewis won the honors and thereby gained the decision.

WEIGHT FAVORS MORAN.

Mack returned to Boston Sunday night from Rochester where he went ten rounds to a draw with Walter Mohr of Brooklyn, last Friday night. He says he's ready for tonight's fracas. On paper, it looks as if Moran has the better of the weights. Granting the Armory A. A. press agent is not kidding in giving out the weights, 136 pounds at 3 p. m., that's a notch that evidently favors the Southern boy.

Mack has seldom scaled in lower than 138 or 140 pounds of late months. Of course, he's bound to go bulging up to the latter figure by the time he enters the ring, if pitched making 136, as some seven hours will elapse between weighing-in time and boxing time. Still, this is dog-gone tortrid weather and Mack cannot afford to get too fine and then hope to slip twelve rounds at his fastest clip.

Moran, a twenty-one-year-oldes, son of Italian parents and born and reared in New Orleans, being a graduate of the famous French Market section of the Louisiana city, the same corner which produced good old Jack Dempsey, the only original Andy Bowen and later, Joe Mandot and Frankie Russell.

Moran fought a lot of great battles as a bantamweight and featherweight all over Southland. Since coming East he has gone to the post six times. In Philadelphia he mussed up Eddie Matthews, while in New York he had it out with Benny Leonard, Frankie Callahan, Phil Bloom, Shamus O'Brien and Leo Johnson.

Moran claims he won all his Broadway starts, save his ten-round session with Leonard. That took place June 23, at the Harlem Sporting Club, and Moran has clippings to show he did his best work in the last three sessions. Then, down at Chattanooga, Tenn., he gave Charley White a battle royal.

MCCARTHY BACK OF VIC.

Joe McCarthy, the South Boston sporting man has Moran in tow, he claims Vic looks like the real thing to him—a boy every bit as good and as spry as Johnny O'Leary or Ever Hammer, two other out-of-town stars who recently made their bows in Boston and made good.

Betting on the fuss has opened mighty quiet. However, the chances are Moran will go to the post a favorite.

Johnny Downes of South Boston, who looks better every time he works and who looms up as an almost sure performer on Big Time some long, hooks up with Joe Morgan of Manchester, N. H., in the semi-final event. They will travel the usual eight-round route.

Herbert Gets in Title Finals at Revere

Freddie Herbert of Fall River was the winner of the thirty-mile motor-paced race at the Revere cycle track. Bobby Walthour, the Atlanta, Ga., veteran, finished second, and, with the victor, qualified to ride in the finals for the American championship at the Beach Oval tomorrow night. Clarence Carman of Jamaica, L. I., and George Wiley of Syracuse, N. Y., will complete the field.

Walthour led Herbert for more than half the course, but nine miles from the finish the Fall River boy went into the lead and stayed there. The winner's time was 42m. 29 2-5s.

The fifteen-mile special match race between Leon Didier of France and George Wiley was won by the former in 21m. 41s.

Harold Rollins of Everett, with a handicap of seventy-five yards, finished first in the half-mile professional race, and John Fardig of East Boston won the mile amateur handicap event. Fardig's handicap was twenty yards and his time 2m. 2 4-5s.

SHORT SIX DAY RACE IS ON AT NEWARK

Newark, N. J., Aug. 22—Modified six day racing which was furnished the patrons at the Newark Velodrome, last night when seventeen teams started a six day, two hours a night race, is continued tonight. Among the teams starting were Frank Kramer and Jackie Clark, Alfred Grenda and Alfred Goullet, Bob Spears and Reggie McNamara, Hans and Ernest Ohrt, Jake Magin and Fred Hill and Eddie Root and William Spencer, the latter just turning professional on Sunday after winning the two-mile open amateur.

Goullet and Grenda, Clark and Kramer, second; Hanley and Madden, third; Cameron and Kaiser, fourth; Magin and Hill, fifth, was the order at the end of the two hours. They covered 59 miles. The fifty-mile mark was passed in 1 hours 51 minutes 22 2-5 seconds.

RED SOX RECALL SIX MEN FROM MINORS

Cincinnati, Aug. 22—One hundred and three players, who were sold to minor leagues under optional agreements which provided for their recall Aug. 22, will be back in major league company.

Of these options forty were exercised by National League and sixty-three by American League clubs. The list includes:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

By Boston—From Providence, Blackburn.

By New York—From New London—Rodriguez.

By Philadelphia—From New London, Fortune, Fish and Weiser; from Providence, Baumgartner and Tincup.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

By Boston—From Buffalo, Wisner, Geary and Pennock. New Haven, Dubuc; Newark, Shorten. New Orleans, Thomas.

By Detroit—From Providence, Yelle.

LAST NIGHT IN THE RING.

New York, Aug. 22.—In the star bout of ten rounds at the Olympic A. C., Joe Lynch decisively outpointed Abe Friedman, the former amateur 125-pound champion. Frankie Warlafe disposed of Tommy Woods by the knockout route in the first round.

Shun Curve Balls to Save Whip, Says Plank

"I'm practically forty-one years old; I'm confident I will stay in the big leagues until I'm forty-five."

So said Eddie Plank, the veteran southpaw, who is doing splendid service on the slab for the Browns this Summer, to a Philadelphia interviewer a few days ago.

By EDDIE PLANK,

Famous American League Southpaw.

I never had a sore arm in my life and when I quit the game it will be because I am tired of it. Pitching is a job. It must be mastered by the pitcher. He must study the other fellow carefully, the batter, and then give him the kind of ball that he is weak against.

That's the way I pitched for fifteen years. The fellow with the fast ball will last longer than the one with the curves. I will pitch five fast balls to a single curve or slow ball. However a pitcher to be successful in the big leagues must be the possessor of both combinations. Control is the biggest point.

If you can put the ball where you want to then you will win more games than you lose. I believe control just was natural with me. If you keep the ball away from the groove of the sluggers you will win.

Benny Kauff got one real hit off me last season. It was a drive over the right field fence in St. Louis. He had me three and two and my foot slipped just as I shot the ball. It went outside and he lined it over the fence.

You can't fool Ty Cobb. He will hit anything. Against Ty I just try to get him off his stride and trust to luck. Sluggers like Crawford, Speaker and Jackson are easier to fool because they swing a heavier bat and hold it on the handle. Ty uses a light toothpick.

I never try for a strike-out record. You won't last long if you attempt to fan every man that comes to the plate. I know I have eight other fellows on the field with me.

In Spring training I take my time. I never curve a ball until after the first week and then I start my speed gradually. I believe that this system has kept my arm in shape for fifteen years.

PIPP IS HOME-RUN KING.

New York, Aug. 22.—First Baseman Pipp of the Yankees displaced Frank Baker as the American League's home-run king for the season when he drove out his ninth circuit drive against the White Sox yesterday.

SCHULZ GOING TO COAST.

Los Angeles, Aug. 22.—Infielder Joe Schulz of the Pittsburgh Pirates, a former Brave, has been secured by purchase by Manager Chance of the Los Angeles (Pacific Coast League) club.

MILLIONS SOLD EVERY YEAR EL CHO 10 CENT CIGAR

PATSY CLINE A WINNER.

New York, Aug. 22.—The work of "Irish Patsy" Cline in a ten-round bout with George Volk at the Olympic A. C. was a revelation to the boxing fraternity. By actual count Volk only landed squarely once. That was a right-hander to the head early in the bout. Cline jabbed and punched Volk at will. This was Cline's preparation for his bout with Leo Johnson Thursday night.

"BEATRICE FAIRFAX"

Novelized From the Great Film Play
By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

By Beatrice Fairfax
(Novelized from the scenario of Basil Dickey and produced by Wharton Inc. Studios for the International Film Service Inc.)
(Copyright, 1916, International News Service)

NOW, Miss Beatrice, I ask you to picture friend Jimmy standing on a little table and peeping through a big transom. I know you don't approve of eavesdropping, but until you revolutionize the whole newspaper game I guess big stories will continue to be—"overheard."

"Pretty soon in comes a chap I take to be our friend Ali, all dressed up in the robes I have to do with the priests of Buddha. The stranger makes a deep salaam and Ali graciously bids him rise. Then the priest asks a question and the caller replies:

"I was not quite positive of what I heard—but now it connects up. It was '229 Pelham road.' Does that interest you, Miss Fairfax?"

I looked at Dorothy McRay's letter lying on the table between us. 229 Pelham road seemed suddenly fraught with mystery and strange portent.

"My story seems to interest you, said Jimmy, smiling. Want to hear the next chapter?

Well, we left Jimmy on the table peering through the transom. The stranger I had followed to Ali's apartment talked a good deal louder than the priest, so I got what he said. The next bit of repartee which came my way was: 'Each night he takes it from the vault and locks at it. With my eyes have seen it.'

The Mystic Word

"Miss Fairfax, I had a sudden feeling that whatever 'it' was I wanted to see it, too. There's something mysterious and magical sounding about those East Indian chaps that just about hypnotizes a fellow. And that strange Ali assumed so respectfully when he spoke of 'it' that all I could think it might be was a pigeon blood ruby from the forehead of Buddha or some little trinket like that.

Neither Jimmy nor I could possibly have imagined how much more "it" stood for to those Buddhist priests than would even the priceless pigeon blood ruby from the forehead of an idol have meant.

"At the very end only Rajo Ali spoke loud enough for me to hear. It was only one word—but that one word was: 'Tonight.'"

As Jimmy breathed "Tonight" some of the mystery of the East infused itself into his drawling young voice.

"Tonight!"

Some plot with its focal point at the address from which Dorothy McRay had written me was to be carried out that night. The East had come across the seas in pursuit of something the West must yield.

What could the Rajo Ali Jaibel want of a young girl who had written to me because her father would not permit her to marry the man she loved?

Jimmy and I looked at each other, and thought leaped like an electric spark across the charged air which lay between us.

"Tonight!—I wanted to go there anyway to try to help Dorothy McRay," I said.

The Empty House

"And I've got to go there now that I'm sure of the address which I didn't quite get, but which your letter gives me," said Jimmy. "I've just one more useful bit of datum, Miss Beatrice. You see, I followed that Indian after he left the Rajo's room at the hotel.

"And he led me to a cross street, where he vanished into an emptylooking place with a big 'For Sale' sign across the front of it.

"I got THAT number all right—and now, with the number you have, I think we're on our way to get our friend Ali's number. What do you think about it?"

We wasted no more time in imagining what we were going to get—but set out at once to get it.

Pelham road No. 220 was a pretty suburban cottage set well back from the street in grounds which had been laid out by a clever landscape gardener, whose art made the sloping lawn set with tiny bushes and hedges of shrubbery and sunken gardens, seem almost like a city park. The place suggested an English country house transplanted in miniature to the heart of Westchester.

The McRay cottage was exactly the sort of place in which nothing more exciting than the daily five o'clock tea should find its setting. But as we drove up in the taxi which the sudden need of haste had made necessary we must take wild screams rent the air, and the first to greet us as we started up the path was a uniformed policeman, who turned into the gate just ahead of us.

As Dorothy McRay's fiance is arrested for the murder of her father, Beatrice Fairfax (Grace Darling) tries to comfort the stricken daughter. Jimmy Barton (Harry Fox) stands at the left, sizing up the situation

I felt like a terrified sleeper who is transplanted from the peace and security of a happy dream in brightly lighted, cheerful places to the hideous events of a nightmare.

But without stopping to analyze my feeling, I rushed up the path after Jimmy and the policeman. The door of the cottage stood open. We entered the broad hall and followed the sound of the screams into a room which was a library in every sense of the word. Great cases of books lined the wall from floor to ceiling.

The French windows were closed and the curtains drawn. The air was almost stifling. And in one corner of the room a strange group was huddled.

On the sofa lay the body of a military looking man of between fifty and sixty. His face was set in an ugly sneer—it portrayed utter hatred and something of terror.

Above the body stood an erect, good-looking chap in whose hand was a blood-stained knife. A maid stood shrinking back against a table screaming at intervals with an almost automatic effort.

The officer seized the man who held the knife, and silenced him when he made an effort to speak.

Then he turned to another girl who was lurking so far back in the shadows that I had not noticed her. She was a remarkably pretty girl of the flowerlike English type. But her face had a look of horror and suffering such as I have never before beheld on that of any human creature.

She seemed to be looking at life as if it were an unbelievably hideous thing beneath its smiling mask. The head of Medusa of fabled antiquity might have produced just such an effect upon its victims as some snake-twined evil had written on the face of this young girl, who seemed hardened into the very mold of stone.

I knew instinctively that this must be Dorothy McRay and that the man who lay dead at her feet was her father. But who was the handsome young fellow from whose nerveless hand the officer had taken the blood-stained knife?

The policeman spoke to the girl. "Do you know who this young fellow is? Can you think of any motive why he'd want to kill your father?"

The girl looked at her questioner for a moment and then turned eyes of anguish and reproach on his prisoner. She opened her lips to speak and then stumbled back and fell fainting in my arms. I had seen her need and had hurried to her just in time to catch her.

We laid the fainting girl on a couch and the maid silenced her screaming in order to meet the need of helping me revive her mistress.

Jimmy stood back in the shadows eagerly contemplating some train of thought on which his active brain was started.

"As soon as the girl is a little better, you'd better come along with me, Miss Fairfax," said he.

"Wait!" I cried impatiently. "We'll be too late after a while," said Jimmy—but I thought he was speaking in answer to something the officer had said rather than to me.

At last our efforts were rewarded, and the girl stared at me with that strange, blurred expression people often have when they come suddenly from the world of unconsciousness back to the world where they must again realize their sufferings.

Jimmy Urges Haste

"I am Beatrice Fairfax, dear. I came in answer to your letter. I want to help you. Do you believe in me? I want nothing in all this world so much now as just to help you."

"Beatrice Fairfax—you want to help me?" muttered the girl vaguely. And then she fell to sobbing.

"The maid can take care of her now, Miss Beatrice—I think you'll be most help if you come along with me," said Jimmy.

The girl opened her eyes suddenly and studied me. Suddenly the floodgates of a new necessity opened. Like many people who are enduring terrible stress and strain, Dorothy McRay felt that she must tell her story—she had to give herself the relief of words.

"Please don't go—wait until I tell you," she cried—"I'll tell you everything; please wait."

"Ten minutes," muttered Jimmy in my ear. "I'll give you ten minutes with this cheerful young person."

He said it grudgingly. He thought we were wasting precious time—but if we had not heard Dorothy McRay's story none of what we saw afterward on our strange night journey could have meant enough to us to save the girl from a horrible doom.

This was Dorothy's story. She loved Donald Jordan, the man whom the policeman had placed under arrest. Her father had felt a strange animosity toward the young lawyer, but never until that afternoon had he taken a violent stand in the matter.

That day, however, he had come upon Donald and Dorothy and had fairly torn his daughter out of the arms of the man she loved.

Then he told Donald that he was not to enter the house. The younger man replied angrily, and the two almost came to blows. Finally Donald had raised his hand in fury and had shouted wildly: "I'll marry her and I know you'll give your consent in their troubled depths. Bared the trust Donald Jordan—trust him in spite of those ghastly words?

Looking for Trouble

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

If you are one of those foolish souls who look for trouble, make up your mind at once to right about face and look in the opposite direction from now on.

It is a good thing to remember that almost everything reaches its greatest value in anticipation—pleasure and trouble alike, pain and delight as well.

Worrying about things doesn't make them one bit easier to bear—but instead weakens one's powers of endurance and means that a certain amount of energy which ought to be expended in the actual meeting of a situation has been wasted in planning how to meet it.

The troubles for which one looks very often fail to materialize, but their dread and some others which it takes all of one's strength to bear at the time are entirely unlooked for. Isn't it tragically foolish then that one bit of strength and nerve should have been wasted in imagining how one would endure an unpleasant set of situations which do not prove to endure?

The girl who is doomed to spend her Summer in the city is very likely to wonder with self-pity why she is condemned through the long, hot, lonely days and the stuffy unevenful evenings to endure a cold, rainy Summer arrives where she has to endure an entirely different set of conditions from the one about which she was worrying.

It is a good idea to remember that nothing is very serious—and that we give things a value and importance hopelessly beyond their actual gravity.

In looking back over the events of last month who does not smile at something which then seemed very agonizing? Perspective changes the appearance of things greatly.

An emotional nature exaggerates things frightfully at the actual time of their happening. The poised and balanced nature doesn't make the blunder of taking its own pleasures or its own sorrows too seriously. It knows that nothing lasts—but life is change and flux and alterations.

Since this is so, why agonize over something today which doesn't seem very important tomorrow, especially so since you only wear yourself out and leave yourself unable to contend with tomorrow's situation?

None of us has any more than just a certain amount of vital energy at a given moment. What's the use of borrowing tomorrow's store in order to meet today's events? What is the use of running to meet trouble half way when trouble would probably arrive soon enough without invitation or encouragement?

Heretofully we all have it within us to forget. Wounds heal. Memory shrouds pain with a kindly mist at times. The same person does not anticipate too much of joy or too much of sorrow. But he remembers both with a wise and tolerant smile rather than with feelings either of exultancy or agony.

Movie Actresses and Their Hair

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact (this is a secret), many are leading their part because of their attractive locks. Inquiry among them discloses the fact that they owe it all the natural beauty of their hair by careful shampooing, not with any soap or makeshift, but with a simple mixture which they make up for themselves by putting a teaspoonful of cantharox (which they get from any druggist), in a cup of hot water and applying this instead of soap. After its use their hair dries rapidly, with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The hair is so fluffy that it looks much heavier than it is, its lustre and softness is delightful, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.—Advertisement.

Frightened the Poet

The ethereal being with loathern locks was shown into the editorial sanctum.

"I have written a poem on the dog," he said.

"Whose dog?" demanded the editor, fiercely.

"It is not any particular dog," faltered the poet.

"Do you mean to say you took advantage of the dog because he was not particular, and wrote your poem on him?" asked the editor.

"I am afraid you do not understand me. I wrote the poem resisting the dog's—"

"But why were you regarding the dog at all? What did it done that you should regard it?"

"If you will allow me to explain, I had been inspired by the dog's fidelity—"

"If the dog was faithful, why should you seek to hurt its feelings by writing a poem on it?" And how did you manage to write a poem on it, at any rate? Did you take the poor brute shaved, and tattoo the verses on its back, or did you bribe them on? Perhaps you'—

But the poet had fled.

A Girl and a Man

Agnes, in a Terror of Doubt, Wonders What Mr. Hale Will Think of Her

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXI.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

Agnes' sense of irritation against Phillip Hale was not dispelled as the hour passed. She was not actually angry with him, yet she felt that he should have had enough consideration for her to protect her from such comments as his behavior toward her might cause. These thoughts were her companions while her fingers were busy with her typewriter.

When she had finished the last letter she handed it to her employer. She did not look at him, for she was painfully self-conscious since the incident of Phillip's note.

"Is there anything more I can do before I leave, Mr. Hale?" she asked.

"Nothing," he answered. "You may go home now. I am going myself as soon as I finish signing these."

"Good day!" she said, but he had taken up his pen again and did not reply.

The outer office was deserted except for one of the clerks and Joe, who were chatting together, and Phillip Hale, who was sitting at his desk reading a newspaper. Involuntarily Agnes walked past him lightly, hoping that he would not hear her and looked up. It would be awkward were he to speak to her now, just when his father might be coming out of his room.

So successful was she that she crossed the open space and reached the check-boot without his seeing her. As she pinned on her hat, she saw him rise, take up his hat and go over to Mr. Hale's office. Evidently father and son were going home together. Now was her opportunity to slip away.

PHILIP APPEARS

Snatching up her gloves, she started toward the entrance, when, with a sense of exasperation, remembered that she had left her jacket hanging in the closet.

Turning, she went back for it, and as she again started across the room, Philip appeared in the door of the inner office and stood there awaiting his father. She must not meet him, she resolved, so would pretend not to see him. She went on buttoning her gloves, never raising her eyes. Yet, just as she reached the door, she heard a step behind her and Phillip's low voice speaking her name.

"Agnes!" he murmured, peremptorily. "I want an answer to my question. May I come tomorrow night?"

"Oh, Phil!" she breathed. "What will your father think? Please go back before he comes out."

"Then say I may come tomorrow," he persisted.

"Oh, yes!" she exclaimed, in an agony of nervousness.

"What are you afraid of?"—Phil began, then, as she turned away, he added—"you aren't angry with me, are you?"

"Go back!" she ordered, trying to pass him.

But she was too late, for at that instant Mr. Hale appeared in the door of his office. Her worst fears were realized. He had seen her and his son talking together. With a gasp, she hurried out into the hall, signalled for the elevator and reached the street before she allowed herself time to think.

Seated in the subway, she tried to review the day's happenings calmly, in the hope that, by doing this, she would be able to quiet her agonies of pain.

But it was in vain. She could not ignore the truth that Mr. Hale had detected her receiving a note from his son—whom he was not aware she had ever met outside his office—and that later he had come upon her talking in a low voice to him. And it was all because Phillip was not willing to follow her instructions, to do as she had urged him to do.

Well, if he did not object to getting himself into trouble with his father, he might at least have enough consideration for her not to place her in such a position that Mr. Hale might class her with the designing girls of whom Annie Gurney had spoken so freely.

If her employer suspected her of making clandestine appointments with his son, of getting clandestine communications from him, he would be justified in discharging her.

A SAD INTUITION

Of course, Phillip might try to make things right by telling his father the truth—and yet, unless she was mistaken, William Hale would not approve of his boy's friendship with a girl in her humble sphere. Since her talk with Annie she was sure of this. Had Annie not said that "the old man might raise the devil at first."

She wished she had never allowed Annie to speak of the matter—and yet she had felt that nobody could ever suspect her of belonging to the class that the girl had mentioned. She might have been able to forget the whole discussion but for the dreadful concatenation of circumstances. Indeed, Annie would not have introduced the subject had Phillip not smiled at Agnes when she gave him a message from his father.

Yes, it all came back to Phillip. All this horrid mess could not have occurred but for him; it was all unnecessary—if Phil had not been so reckless, so regardless of appearances. Yes, she was angry with him.

She was glad that she had told him he might come to see her tomorrow night. Then they could talk things out, and she would see just what she thought of his conduct. If he had at last confessed the truth to his father—

She stopped herself with an impatient movement. She had been thinking around in a circle. Moreover, she had forbidden Phillip to tell his father how matters stood between them. She suddenly recollected this now.

Had she not made him promise to keep silence? Then could give the elderly man no satisfactory explanation of Phil's behavior. What must her employer think of her?

To Be Continued.

In Our Wonderful World

A curious idea among the Burmese is that people born on the same day of the week must not marry, and that if they defy the Fates their union will be marked by much ill-luck. To prevent these disastrous marriages, every girl carries a record of her birthday in her name, each day of the week having a letter belonging to it, and all children are called by a name that begins with that letter. It is rather hard if the Marys and Marks of Burma fall in love with each other, as in this country. Pauline other Oriental lands the choice people are allowed to marry as taste dictates, subject only to the birthday restrictions.

• • •

Much of our defective vision—a weakness unknown among savage races—is undoubtedly due to the fact that, after the tenth year, the human being in civilized countries is forced to spend a large part of the time in poring over books either to read or write. The child is accustomed not to allow his attention to stray, but to apply himself diligently to the work in hand, whereas he should be taught that, while reading or writing, he must glance up every few seconds and look at some distant object, like a tree, to be seen through the bars or the chimney of a far-off house.

In keeping his eyes fixed on the book right in front of him, the child is doing the worst possible harm to his eyes, for such unchanging position is a potent object examines the field of his eye, and presents that stimulation which results in nearsightedness. The reason why the savage is never near-sighted is that he lives an outdoor life, and knows nothing of books and pictures.

What manual labor he performs is performed in the open, and the manifold dangers which surround him, the beasts of the jungle or hostile tribes, make constant vigilance and an alert scanning of the horizon necessary. There is no better remedy for keeping the eyesight in good form than to look up every few seconds from one's work, focusing the eyes on a distant object. If such a practice were followed in our schools there would be far fewer near-sighted persons.

Died of a Broken Heart

Unusual in these days, perhaps you'll say. What's more, he was an actor. Next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN tells all about it.

Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Quantities are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

Veal and Peanut Croquettes

2 pounds lean veal, boiled until tender.
½ cupful shelled peanuts.
1 tablespoonful butter.
5½ tablespoonfuls flour.
2-3 cupful milk.
1-3 cupful rich veal stock.
¾ teaspoonful salt.
Few grains pepper.
Dry bread crumbs.
1 egg.

Make a white sauce of the milk, stock, flour, butter, salt and pepper. Chop the veal fine—there should be three cupfuls. Add the peanuts rolled almost to powder, and combine with the sauce. Cool, form into chop-shaped croquettes, roll in the dry bread crumbs and in the egg slightly beaten and diluted with one-quarter cupful of cold water, then in the crumbs again. Insert a piece of macaroni in the end of each to represent the bone of a chop, and fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a bit of bread to forty counts.

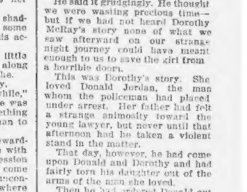
Frozen Fruit Mayonnaise

1 cupful mayonnaise dressing.
1 cupful whipped cream.
2¼ cupfuls mixed fresh and candied fruits, as maraschino cherries, candied pineapple, orange, sliced peaches, stoned cherries, etc.
1 teaspoonful powdered sugar.
1 teaspoonful gelatin.

Cover the gelatin with cold water, and then set it over steam to melt. Beat into the mayonnaise. Combine the mixture with the whipped cream, stir in the fruit, and pour into a mold which has been rinsed with cold water. Seal carefully and bury in equal parts of ice and salt for four hours. Serve garnished with lettuce hearts and parsley.

IT HAS CURED MY STOMACH TROUBLE

Mrs. Eunice Dawes of 164 Hancock St., Cambridge, Now Testifies for Plant Juice.



We Americans have many serious troubles to confront, but the most important of these is perfect sanitation in the home, for our greatest hope and hope of benefiting those who have to endure long years of suffering unjustly they have forced serious inroads into their health and happiness. Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, which acts as a combination of nature's own herbs, is placed on the market. It is indeed gratifying to note the remarkable results that have been achieved by this preparation.

Plant Juice is extracted from the roots, herbs, barks and berries of many strong medicinal plants. It is Nature's own remedy and works with it. It gives almost immediate relief where people suffer from constipation, bad kidney trouble, as is attested by the many letters received from well known local people, who have found relief and have had no reason to doubt all in hope of recovery.

One of the most recent statements made is that of Mrs. Eunice Dawes of 164 Hancock St., Cambridge, who has been a resident of Boston for the past 30 years, and is well known around there. She said:

"For years I had suffered with my stomach in the form of indigestion and gas, which pressed on my heart and nerves. I was dizzy and badly constipated, and many kinds of medicines could not get results or vegetables and I could not sleep at night and got very weak and nervous. I could not relish anything and had no ambition or energy. I had tried Plant Juice for my liver and kidneys were also badly affected, but never knew what it was to have a day without pain. I heard of Plant Juice and started to take it. I can now state publicly that I am entirely cured of all my troubles and owe my public statement to Plant Juice for the wonderful results I obtained."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Jonathon & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

APPEAL FOR PAY FOR BAY STATE TROOPS

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 22.—Colonel John H. Sherburne of Brookline, member of the Massachusetts Legislature and commander of the First Massachusetts Field Artillery, has appealed to United States Senator John W. Weeks by wire to take action in Washington to hasten the pay of the men of his regiment.

The telegram followed the army paymaster's announcement here that he would have to stop paying the National Guard as he had run out of funds. This meant that the artillery and the Eighth Massachusetts Infantry and Michigan troops cannot be paid for another month at least unless summary action is taken. The Fifth and Ninth Regiments and the cavalry have been paid.

PROMP ACTION IMPERATIVE.

The text of Colonel Sherburne's telegram was not made public, but it pointed out that prompt action was necessary to relieve enlisted men with dependents, and stated that their families were in great distress.

Colonel Sherburne told Senator Weeks that his men have received but $8 for nine weeks of work since the President's call to arms, and urged that some emergency measure be taken to insure prompt payment while the lawmakers in Washington were debating the technicalities of the army appropriation bill.

There was much grumbling today in the Eighth and artillery regiments when they learned that there was no prospect of money for another month. Many of the men with families have not enough to buy stamps to write home. The financial status of the Bay State troops on the border has been peculiarly annoying in many instances.

RIDDLE UNSOLVED.

Everybody in the Massachusetts brigade, from colonels to doughboys, is watching the proverbial straw these days in an effort to see how the administration wind is blowing. They are trying to find some answer to the stock query, "When do we go home?"

But the riddle remains unsolved. Rumors are as thick as flies. Apparently the highest officers are as ignorant as the most inquisitive rookie concerning troop movements. It has been reported at Camp Cotton that the cousin of one infantryman who works for the New Haven road saw a telegram ordering that road to hurry troop trains to the border the latter part of this month.

TARGET WORK RUMOR.

It has been reported that the Massachusetts regiments of infantry will soon be sent to Fort Perry, in Ohio, for target work. It is also rumored that all the Bay State troops, with National Guard units from other States will be moved back to an Indian reservation in Texas and put through extensive manoeuvres the month of October and start home November 1.

While boasting various degrees of authenticity these reports appear to be the product of border gossip and to be offset by developments which indicate an indefinite stay and tend, in a measure, to support the argument of those who claim the militia will eventually be sent into Mexico for police duty or more serious work.

For example, it was learned today that secret war maps and war diaries are being issued to the Massachusetts National Guard that of other States concentrated here. Issues of Winter overcoats is another perplexing item. The erection of permanent mess and cook shacks and a string of permanent base hospitals along the border looks like business, as does the erection of two mammoth metal sheds for ammunition at San Antonio.

THINK SITUATION SINISTER.

Bay State officers think the constant arrival of thousands of horses and mules and supplies and equipment shows a national expenditure which must be prompted by a situation more sinister than the public may appreciate from the slender facts at hand.

After every new development and report has been dissected and analyzed there is still the chorus in the Massachusetts camps:

"Are we going to cross the line or are we going home?"

Forty-eight of the boys who failed to pass the physical test by federal experts are no longer worried by the border bugaboo about time limit, because they started home yesterday afternoon, many of them by way of New Orleans and the coast.

BILLIE SCOTT BARES ART MODELS' LIVES

Boston art circles are due for a second shock.

First was the news that the fair and shapely art models of the Hub were going to form a union, demand more pay, less hours and other betterments, as related in the AMERICAN last Sunday.

Now comes Miss Billie Scott, one of the most beautiful models that ever delighted an artist's eye, with her own story of the "actual temptations, pitfalls and rewards" of being a model.

Miss Scott's revelations of a model's life from the inside will begin in the next Boston Sunday AMERICAN of August 27. It will be liberally illustrated, showing a model in a life class, a sample of difficult poses and other striking pictures.

The "Model" article will occupy an entire page of the magazine section next Sunday and will be followed by successive Sunday articles dealing with various phases of a girl model's life.

"How Love Unlocks Genius" will be another feature article in the magazine section next Sunday. It is told by the charming heroine of the latest studio romance, Mlle. Jeanne Marcelle.

Why our Boston and New England girls cling to the line of the soldier boys departing for the Mexican border is scientifically explained. Of course, any girl knows why she kissed "him" again and again before the train started, but science likens her to the original cave woman, worshipping force.

"Our" Baron Astor had a coat of arms made. Well and good. He's a noble Lord. But he blundered, they say, in the "supporters." Read about it next Sunday.

DENY JAPS HAVE NAVAL BASE AT PANAMA

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 22.—German propagandists inspired and spread reports of the acquisition, through secret agents, of land for a naval base on the Atlantic seaboard of Panama. Such statements are so utterly ridiculous that the Japanese government scarcely feels the necessity of stamping them as unfounded.

Nobutaro Kawamitsu, third secretary of the Japanese Embassy, today issued the second denial by the Japanese government of the charges of Japanese aggression in the Western hemisphere.

When informed that the State Department's information concerning the land deal were of such a nature as in instituting a searching investigation, Mr. Kawamitsu said that the Japanese government would welcome the most thorough inquiry into this and similar "manufactured" reports.

"The Japanese government will take no official cognizance of the allegations," Mr. Kawashima said, "until the matter is brought formally to its attention by the State Department."

At the State Department it was learned that inquiry may be made of the Japanese Embassy as to status of the alien inspector at Havana, Cuba, who is said to have engineered the "land deal" involving 60,000 acres with the aid of officials of the Panama government. The alleged purchaser, although of Spanish nationality, is said to be the financial agent of Japanese silk firms in Cuba.

P. A. Valentine Dead.

KNOX AT RENO FOR DIVORCE, HE ADMITS

By International News Service.

Reno, Nev., Aug. 22.—Philander C. Knox, a son of the former Secretary of State, today made his first statement here regarding his taking residence in Reno. He has been living here in the most retired manner to establish a legal residence. He said:

"I am here to get a divorce. My suit will be filed on November 23 next. My wife deserted me, and that is the ground on which I shall apply for divorce. I expect my wife will contest the suit. I expect also to make my home in Nevada and to go into business here.

"I refuse to say anything more about my intentions. I know where my wife is, and she will be served with a copy of the summons in proper time."

Young Knox has arranged to take apartments in the Reno Y. M. C. A. building and is in touch with leading Republican politicians. He says he will take a small part in the Republican campaign in Nevada. Colonel E. H. Butler, north in his attorney.

His wife was a providence, R. I., shortly when Knox first met her.

COL. J. G. BUTLER DEAD AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Aug. 22.—Colonel James Guy Butler, multi-millionaire philanthropist, died at his home here early today. He was seventy-six years old. Death followed an operation, six weeks ago. Colonel Butler was heavily interested in the tobacco industry, being one of the pioneers in the St. Louis market.

Aviator Will Drop 3,000 Feet at Braves Field Patriotic Exhibition

How De Lloyd Thompson, famous aviator, will appear in his air craft as he makes great drop of 3,000 feet at Braves Field with a battery of searchlights showing spectacular descent to thousands of persons.

In a spectacular drop of 3,000 feet, De Lloyd Thompson will leave a trail of livid fire from clouds to earth to mark the course of descent in one of the most thrilling air dives ever tried by night, and which will be one of the many features the aviator will demonstrate at Braves Field tomorrow night.

The big pyrotechnic display which is to be staged in benefit of Massachusetts Volunteer Association is to be replete with striking features. These have been planned to take place at unexpected moments. Every minute of the big demonstration will be made lively with some new and breath-taking performance.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the big show. The sale of tickets at the stores and stands have exceeded the expectation of the managers of this great patriotic venture.

Fireworks manufacturers who have been busy for many weeks getting ready the immense set pieces have reported that all is completed. The searchlight operators who will play such an important part in the aviation event have all been selected.

MME. HAMLIN TO SING.

The night is ready and Mme. Grace Hamlin, who is to sing, is completing her rehearsals of a new song for the occasion. The official seal of approval of the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association was stamped upon the enterprise last week, when following a full meeting of the committee appointed by Governor McCall to look after the families of the soldiers who were sent to the border, it was voted to accept the proposition made by the United Drug Company, through its president, John K. Liggett.

Chairman George H. Lyman of the association has acknowledged the receipt of a letter from President Liggett offering the entertainment as a patriotic benefit.

The air battle will probably be the most spectacular of the features which will be performed by Thompson.

A fusillade of fireworks from the ground will meet the fireworks set loose by Thompson in his aerial flight. The searchlights will endeavor to find the skimming machine as it performs its graceful evolutions in the air, with the bombs from the field chasing up into the sky in the minute battle.

The flight of Thompson will have an educational value. He is a firm exponent of national preparedness and will demonstrate in his bomb dropping work just how easy it would be for an enemy airship to descend upon Boston and in a few minutes time destroy a large part of its buildings.

PLANS ALTITUDE TEST.

Sweeping through the air at an altitude of from 1,000 to 3,000 feet the aviator will suddenly release his fire powder which he will carry in the tail of the machine. This powder will be lighted by electricity, and with it flaming in two streams behind him, he will suddenly change from his monoplane and write against the sky. This work has to be done at a great height so that the vast flaming streams are moulded together as one. To make the letters visible they have to be formed at a high altitude. Each drop forming a letter has to be over the field of the test. The letter O is made by a loop-the-loop stunt and many other graceful manoeuvres are necessary to complete the word-writing event.

An altitude light will be on the aviplane illuminated to show its distance until he reaches it. Thompson holds the American altitude record and he will attempt Wednesday night to do this one better.

SURVIVORS OF KUT PRISONERS OF WAR

Allard, of Fuller street, Brookline, has received word from her cousin, Dudley stewart of the army of Kut-El-Amara, that he and his fellow prisoners, the remnant of the defenders of the Kut, are well treated though prisoners till the war is over. They are able to communicate with friends.

U. S. STEEL SOLD AT 96 1-2, ITS RECORD HIGH

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks rallied strong at noon in New York, although coppers and motors weakened a little in the second. But there was an improvement in railroads. The strongest issues were a few industrial specialties and United States Steel. Steel common sold as high as 96⅝ at noon. First hour transactions totalled nearly 400,000 shares and the market continued active in the second.

Gains at 12 o'clock included Southern Pacific ½, Reading ⅝, New Haven ⅝, Baltimore & Ohio ⅜, American Can ⅝, American Smelting ⅝, Colorado Fuel 1⅜, Lackawanna Steel 1⅞, U. S. Steel 1½, Republic Steel 1, Railway Steel Springs 2⅜, American Locomotive 1⅝, Baldwin 1⅝, Crucible 1⅝, Industrial Alcohol 1⅛, Maxwell ¾, Utah Copper ⅝ and Marine preferred 1.

Among declines were Studebaker 1, Willys-Overland 3¼, Anaconda ⅝ and Kennecott ⅛.

ZINCS BECAME STRONG.

The advance of zincs was a forenoon feature in Boston. Coppers remained firm as a class. Producers are now asking 27½ cents a pound for October copper. This is an advance of half a cent.

Gains at 12 o'clock included Allouez ⅝, Calumet & Arizona ½, North Butte ½, Mohawk ⅛, Old Dominion ½, Shannon ⅛, Utah Consolidated ⅛, New Haven ⅝, American Zinc 1⅛ and Butte & Superior 1⅛.

Among declines were Copper Range ⅛, Granby ½, Tamarack 1, Boston & Montana 2 cents, Crystal Copper 1-16, Davis-Daly 1-16, Homa Oil 2 cents, National Zinc 1 cent and Portland 2 cents. Among declines were Champion 1 cent and Rilla 1 cent.

STEEL KEPT ON CLIMBING.

Amid the excitement incidental to wild trading on the New York Stock Exchange U. S. Steel common resumed its climb, opening at from 95 to 95⅝, 10,000 shares selling at 95¾ on an initial transaction, and before the end of the hour had touched 96⅛, the record high price of 96½. Dealings in this issue totalled many thousand shares. Its resumption of market leadership gives traders great satisfaction. Thus it indicates the market is more normal than at any time since the European war began. Predictions are heard that it will go far above 100 on this movement. It is said in the Steel corporation interests rather than a speculative stock. By the end of this quarter the U. S. Steel Corporation hopes, it is understood, more than $200,000,000 in cash. Its present earnings are very large.

A FEW INDUSTRIALS ACTIVE.

While the market began very active and another million-share day was expected, most of the activity was in Steel with few in U. S. Steel and a few other industrials. But prices generally ruled higher. While railroads were quiet they were steady, reflecting confidence that a strike will be avoided. Coppers did not respond much to statements that metal prices are steadily growing firmer and that demand next year promises to be the greatest ever known. Demand for a number of munition issues, including Crucible, Baldwin, American Locomotive and Industrial Alcohol, was urgent. Marine issues made good gains.

TAMARACK A FEATURE HERE.

Tamarack was the early feature of the Boston market, which was quiet at the start. This copper sold at 47½, up 1½ from Monday's lowest. It closed at the gain it made at the opening today. The advance is attributed to rumors that after all control of the Tamarack property may be acquired by Calumet & Hecla interests at $50 a share. Copper was firmer, closing at 27 cents.

Patronize Patriotism

When President Wilson called out the State Militia on June 18 for duty on the Mexican border, and for active warfare, if necessary, it was the troops of Massachusetts who first left their native State and loved ones in behalf of the patriotic cause. Within a few days of the call they were on the train speeding to their destination. Just how long they were to stay they did not know, and neither do we know yet.

There must have been a great deal of inconvenience to these men in leaving their homes on such short notice. Some of them got out of bed at night and went to the training camp. Whatever sacrifice was made on the part of the men in answering the call of their country, we know that a greater sacrifice was borne by their loved ones left at home.

The fact that our boys at the front have severed their family ties is not the only discomfort that looms up in this situation. Their incomes have decreased, and there are not as many comforts in the homes as there used to be. It is true that a great many big-hearted concerns have continued the salaries of the men at the front, but as a whole the families are not as well off as before.

When Governor McCall organized the committee to work for the soldiers' families under the auspices of the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association, he knew the people of the State, and especially in the city of Boston, would respond to that great patriotic spirit which has ever been alive in the bosoms of our people—and they have responded.

This is not an appeael for donations, but it is an earnest request that the people of our city contribute to this worthy cause by going to Braves Field Wednesday, Aug. 23, at 8 p. m. For 50 cents you will witness a spectacle that has never been equalled in this country or in any other. This is not an ordinary entertainment. It is an extraordinary exhibition. If such an entertainment were to be held as a business proposition, the tickets would have to sell for $1 and $2 each. The price of 50 cents, which has been placed on each ticket, is a small amount which any individual can afford to pay.

You are not only contributing to the soldiers' families by attending this entertainment, but you will see the greatest show of its kind that has ever been staged. This association gets all the income from the sale of these tickets, and it does not pay a cent for the production. The United Drug Company, an institution which has been built up right here in Boston, and which has over 5000 employees, stands every cent of the expense of putting on this big show. Mr. Louis K. Liggett, president of the United Drug Company and ex-president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, told us he would like to do something that would help us with our cause, and this is the way he did it.

We congratulate and thank Mr. Liggett for his great patriotic spirit, and also thank the people of Boston for their support of a cause which is so worthy and beneficial.

The greatest aero exhibition at night that has ever been performed will take place on this programme. You will see the most sensational antics in the sky that can be imagined. Mr. Thompson, the daring aviator, will loop-the-loop with a trail of red fire behind him and play hide-and-seek with the special searchlights which have been procured for this occasion. The most elaborate pieces of fireworks ever produced will light up the grounds; the First Corps Cadets will give a moonlight drill, a feature that is spectacular and which has never been witnessed before. Mme. Grace Hamlin, the noted mezzo-soprano, will contribute her extraordinary talent. All in all, you will have three hours of the best entertainment you have ever seen, and at a price that is almost nothing.

Won't you procure your tickets at once, as it is the intention to have every seat in the place sold before Wednesday noontime? And at the rate the tickets are going, it looks as if this will be accomplished.

Thank you.

MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY,
City Hall, Boston.

DORCHESTER'S PROTEST GOES TO "L" ROAD

Vigorous protests against the "L" service in Dorchester were voiced by half a dozen speakers at an open air meeting of more than 2,000 people in Dorchester.

They protested against changing the car stops along Dorchester avenue and in the Ashmont district. Many have been made late for work by the new plan. The "snake" car also came in for a general share of the criticism.

The meeting was in charge of J. L. Wain of Vice-President Brush of the Elevated road to present the grievances of the people of the district. Gallagher. The speakers were Assistant District Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher, ex-Senator Stanford Bates, Samuel H. Mildram, ex-Councillor Frank H. Crane, George Dwelley and Wendell Murray.

At the close of the meeting, J. L. Gallagher, Daniel J. Gallagher, Sanford Bates, Samuel H. Mildram and George Dwelley were appointed to

The Machine That Talks and Sings IS THE VOICE OF THE HOME

Today the House Without an Instrument to Reproduce the Voices of Artists, the Genius of Musicians, Is Like a House Without a Library

Great Britain Rights Reserved.

THE machine that reproduces the human voice, musical instruments, all music, and dramatic power, is to the human race a discovery as great as the printing press, which gave us the printing of cheap books.

The extraordinary inventions for artistic automatic piano playing are equally valuable and marvellous in their benefits to the race, in their spreading of education.

The work of the greatest musicians, and the technical skill of the greatest artists can be reproduced at will, adding to the production the player's own temperament and feeling—without undergoing the long years of tedious, painful preparation and study, and without undergoing the torture of imperfect performance.

The machine that reproduces the human voice, and the machine that reproduces the piano recitals of the greatest artists of this age, are the greatest intellectual triumphs of this age. They mean more to the human race even than the flying machine or the wireless telegraph. For those are mechanical instruments, dealing only with the physical problems and the physical part of man. The marvellous inventions that put the musician's genius and the artistic talent of the professional performer within the reach of all are aids to the human intellect—and those are the most important of all aids.

The self-respecting man would scarcely admit that he lives in a house without books.

Just as great a misfortune—greater, even, for young people and for children—is to live in a house without the modern miracle of art, the machine that talks and sings, the piano that contains within itself, or the machine that gives a voice to the millions of pianos that are dumb because none in the household can make them speak.

In ancient days few men—only the rich—could own good books.

Each book was written by hand, illustrated by hand. Men travelled thousands of miles to visit the library, and the burning of a library was a misfortune for the whole of civilization.

Today the poorest man may own the greatest books. The intellectual genius of all ages is on the shelf, asking only to be taken and made part of the owner.

As it was with books and the thoughts of the greatest writers, so it was, until recently, with music and the genius of the great musicians.

Music was for the few. Year after year of painful study was necessary to enable the individual to reproduce, even in a faulty manner, the creations of genius.

Concerts and operas were few and expensive. The knowledge of the best music throughout this country was practically NIL.

Today, thanks to the invention of the machine that speaks, not only the greatest music, but the greatest musicians, singers and players of musical instruments, are at the command of every family, of every mother and father, of every child.

It is impossible to predict the wonderful results that will come to the human race in a few generations from this making of GOOD MUSIC UNIVERSAL.

Wherever the father and mother will it, the children may hear from their infancy the works of genius, the greatest composers, the most wonderful artists.

Painful labor and the unsatisfactory results of musical study are done away with.

The genius of Beethoven, the dramatic power and voice of the greatest artists, are at hand on your shelf, like the poems of Shakespeare—and great personality is added to the beauty of the music.

There are many presents, useful and otherwise, that may be appropriately given.

But for the home that lacks the singing and talking machine, with an equipment of good records, music gay and light, music serious and noble, there is but one gift to be thought of.

The greatest addition to the education of man since the days of Gutenberg is the machine that does for music what the printing press did for books and knowledge.

If you haven't in your house a machine that makes all music and all artists your own, GET ONE.

If the friend to whom you mean to give a present lacks the modern machine of civilization, GIVE HIM ONE, or give him a better one than he has.

A man would feel himself disgraced if one, entering his house, should ask: "Have you a book in this house?" The answer would be: "Do you suppose that we are not civilized?"

The house in which there is no machine to interpret musical genius and artistic genius is just as far from the latest civilization as the house in which there are no books.

HE'LL HAVE TO DO IT EVENTUALLY---WHY NOT NOW?

The After-Treatment of Infantile Paralysis

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

THERE are disadvantages in being young as well as in being old. One of the most perplexing and pitiable things about the after-treatment of infantile paralysis is just that it is "infantile," that its little victims are young, very young. This means that they have completed only about a fourth of their growth and a tenth of their muscular education, and paralysis at this stage means not only loss of power, but deformity and grave disturbance of balance.

In fact, paradoxical as it may sound, the most serious cause of trouble in some cases is not that the palsied limb or paralyzed muscle will not grow, but that the opposite limb and the other groups of muscles will keep on growing along with the rest of the body. For instance, one little leg is paralyzed, or half paralyzed, so that it can only move about half as actively and vigorously as the other; the little one walks with a limp, and for several months, even if no improvement occurs, gets about fairly well. Then suddenly one day the parents notice that the limp seems to be getting worse, although the paralyzed limb is no weaker, and when the tape measure is stretched alongside it is discovered to be half or three-quarters of an inch shorter than the sound limb.

This, of course, is not because the weakened limb has shrunk or grown shorter, but simply that it hasn't grown at the same rate as the healthy limb. And, unfortunately, the older and taller the child grows, the more marked becomes the relative shortening of the crippled leg. A pitiful illustration of the bitter Scriptural paradox, "Unto him that hath shall be given, but from him that hath not, shall be taken away even that which he hath!" So that ultimately the poor little victim has often to add to the legitimate labor of the half paralyzed muscles the weight of a box-soled, "club-foot" shoe, or even steel stirrup, or other mechanical apparatus for lengthening it to match the other limb.

Or if one group of muscles in an arm or leg is affected, those that straighten it or extend it, for instance, then the undamaged muscles which bend the limb will overpull the weakened group opposing them and gradually bend the limb in their direction until it becomes permanently crooked and drawn up. So that the problem of combatting the paralysis is not merely that of keeping the paralyzed muscles alive and moving, but also that of preventing the unparalyzed muscles or fellow limb from pushing or pulling them over to one side or outgrowing them.

This is only one illustration of the many complexities and perplexities of the after-treatment of poliomyletis. Whoever undertakes to treat it must have clearly in mind a perfect and accurate picture, first, of the exact damage done and the point in the cord involved; second, of the channels through which repair and improvement may be hoped to come, and third, of what the natural growth of the rest of the limb and body will do to the damaged muscles in the way of overgrowing them and disturbing the balance by racing ahead.

Frankly, it is no job for a family physician or a general practitioner; it requires expert knowledge and training, such as can only be fairly expected of a specialist in children's diseases, expert assistants and nurses to carry out the treatment, which is largely "by hand," by that best of all orthopedic appliances and "batteries," the skilled human fingers, and a considerable equipment of expensive apparatus, gymnastic, electric and therapeutic. Hospital treatment is the only adequate and most hopeful cure for the at least three to five thousand little cripples who will be left in the wake of this epidemic, and the admirable movement of Mr. Hearst to found and equip a special hospital in New York to take care of these little human derelicts will be a public service and a clear-sighted humanity of the highest timeliness and value. Especially in view of the fact that at least nine-tenths of the little victims are from a class which is utterly unable to afford the consultations and skilled nursing and month, and even year-long, after treatment and attention which this disease absolutely demands.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Paramount Issue

THERE are war clouds rolling up along the border,
But there isn't time to fuss about them now;
There are portents of dissension and disorder,
But they must not line the politician's brow.
"Will the gents who have the kale be philanthropic?"
"Are we solid with the bloated money power?"
These two questions form the most absorbing topic
In official conversations of the hour.

AFTER a while we can talk of humanity;
After a while we can plan for reform;
But for the present such things are but vanity,
The campaign is on, and the fight's getting warm;
After a while, with accustomed facility,
We'll talk of uplifting this people or that,
But now what we need is collecting ability,
For this is the season to fry out the fat!

THERE'S abundant local violence impending;
There are wage disputes on every vacant lot.
There's a bunch of legislation needing mending,
And a bunch that's being mended, which does not.
But as long as this profound suspense continues
Only one consideration has the call,
Which is: "Who's going to ante with the sinews
That we'll need to grab the voters with next Fall?"

SOME other day with a frown of asperity
We can sternly denounce our political foes;
Some other day we can promise prosperity,
(There is nothing so easy to do, goodness knows);
Some other time, with anathemas thundering,
We can lambaste the trusts and their creature, the boss;
But now for a time we must sit around wondering
How we can make all the boys come across.

Disgusting Exhibition of Neglected Resources

The government owns 400,000 acres in Alaska, and if it would only train and exhibit them their earnings would build all the battleships we need.

Small Comfort

A dollar will now buy more foreign money than ever before, but we cannot find in any of the women's magazines any recipe for making palatable and nourishing viands out of foreign money.

Very Moderate Language

"McAdoo Calls Hughes a Pettifogger."—Headline. Another great statesman, with the same provocation, would have used the word shyster.

Real Partisans

It must grieve Wilson and Hughes to the soul to read of how crowds of thirty-five thousand men, mostly of the voting age, about themselves hoarse in plugging for a ball team to win.

Coals to Newcastle

Alcoholic liquors cannot be taken into the cemetery at Columbus, Indiana, probably because there are already enough spirits in the place.

Safe Sport

Both parties are sure that the Bull Moose is dead, which presumably is the reason why both parties continue to hunt him so assiduously.

Serenity

By Thomas L. Masson

WE are told by the ones close to him that President Wilson's philosophy is summed up in the rule to do the best he can and not to worry about the consequences. That is naturally a better rule than doing the worst you can and then worrying about the consequences. President Wilson's best is no doubt so much better than the best of many others, that not to worry about it is an easier job. But, after all, anxiety appears to be something by itself, and serenity largely an accomplishment of temperament.

We who are strugglers are always likely to think of serene people with a secret sense of irritation just because we like to feel that they are missing something which, if they had it, would thwart them in their serenity. In short, we like to think of them as not subject to the things which commonly irritate us.

Hence we really come to flatter ourselves that we are better than they are. We like to imagine how they would act if they had the same set of troubles we have. Yet there is another kind of serenity, quite apart from that which is natural, an armed serenity, one that has been bought and paid for by experience, by many failures in the past, welded out of one's hardships.

How can we acquire this serenity? Only in one way, just as we learn any game; for serenity of this kind is a game just like golf or billiards. You have to play it in contact with other people and first learning your form, gradually acquire your technique. There are champion serenists, just as there are champion golfers and billiardists. Learning to be serene for many of us is about like learning to walk the tight rope. Anyone can become fairly expert at it, if he is willing to give up the time. It has, however, great advantages over most other games, because, once you become proficient at it, you are always a prize winner. There's a blue ribbon over your heart all the time.

In-Shoots

If you are too blind to see the faults of others we can occasionally hear them.

Growling men and growling dogs are usually disagreeable from force of habit.

An old maid's cat generally has a better time than most married women's husbands.

Distance lends enchantment to the kalsomined countenance.

Sometimes one may get even with the world by publishing a cook book.

Of course, the high collar is a blessing to the girl with a fleshless clavicle.

The diaphanous skirt is not so attractive when accompanied by ictong props.

It is often difficult to determine whether the devil is best served by a smooth tongue or a pretty face.

The man who is really on the job has but little time to criticise others.

It is seldom that the naked truth needs a bath.

The man to successfully lie to his wife must be an artist.

Slander selects the shining subject.
